Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Pace of Breemo Bluff were winners in the Farm Photo Quiz in last week's issue of the Scottsville Sun. Mr. and Mrs. Pace's farm, which is owned by the family, is located between Breemo Bluff and Fork Union in Fluvanna county and is near Weber City.

The Pace's have lived on their farm for 9 years and Mr. Pace farms the 106 acres. He raises wheat and corn and has some land in pasture. Mr. and Mrs. Pace and their son all work in their excellent garden, and raise all of their vegetables for the summer months and freeze some for winter. On Monday Mrs. Pace froze 24 pounds of peas, and she reported that there were many more on the vines. They planted their peas early, on February 17, because the Pace's believe that the earlier they are planted the better crop they get.

The picture of the Pace's home shows the back view of their house. A neighbor called them on Saturday to tell them that they were the winners in the farm Photo Quiz. Mrs. Pace called at the Sun office on Tuesday to receive her aerial photograph and 14 $1 gift certificates.

Mr. Pace, who has three daughters by his first marriage, is a native of Fluvanna County. Mrs. Pace is from Buckingham County. Their son is 14 years old and is in the 8th grade at Fluvanna County High School.

Fluvanna High News

By Peggy Phillips
Editor of Fluco Hi Quill
53-54 S. C. A. Officers Elected
 The results of the S. C. A. election were; President, David Johnson; Vice-president, Bobby Williams; Secretary, Winifred Perkins; Treasurer, Wayne Pace; Reporter, Gordon Gentry.

Also an amendment to the Constitution whereby negligent home-room representatives may be removed by a 2-3 vote of the Council was overwhelmingly approved.

Gilmer Scater Sets State Record
 May 9, Lambeth Field (U. VA.)
 Gilmer Scater today broke a Virginia, Group III high jump record with a leap of 6' 3-8". His jump surpassed Ken Ayres' (Accomac) 5' 9 7-8" effort in 1939. Scater found keen competition from Bob Sledd of Washington Henry up to the 5' 8" mark. Sledd failed to leap this height and Scater was by himself. Scater's straight on "dear lead" gave the crowd plenty to marvel at. Scater previously had leaped 5' 10" to take District Honors. Scater's winning effort is certainly a fine tribute to Fluvanna County High School, and the student body and faculty are justly proud of his achievement. Bunny Cutright, who placed fourth, in the broad jump, was the only other Fluco to break into the point column.

Senior Activities

On May 18 the Senior Class and some of the Juniors went to Washington to observe the government at work and the historic places.

That big day is approaching rapidly and committees have been appointed and are organizing a class day program for June 11. Class day exercises will be followed by a luncheon for the Mothers and Friends of the Seniors.

Reverend I. B. Hall of Charlottesville will deliver the Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday, June 7 at 8 p.m. Final Commencement exercises will be Thursday, June 11 at 8 p.m.

The Seniors will be entertained by the Juniors on May 22.

Honor Roll

75 students made the Blue and Gold list for the fifth six weeks grading period.

Flucos Capture District Track Title

Charlottesville, Virginia, April 29, 1953

Fluvanna captured the District H. Track Meet title here today at Lane High Field. The locals captured 57 points to Greenwood's 26. McIntire scored 8 points to round out the scoring. Fluvanna took first place in 7 of the 10 events held. Bunny Cutright was the only contestant to win two events. He took first spots in the 100 yard dash and broad jump.

The best performance of the afternoon was turned in by Gil Solater. He took first in the high jump by posting a leap of 5 feet, 10 inches. Ten of the local boys qualified for the state group 111 meet held May 9.

Fluvanna Wins Superior In Creative Writing Contest

Mrs. Mobley has received word that in the creative writing contest of the Virginia High School League the Fluvanna High School folder rated superior. All of the articles rated superior except Roy Loving's essay on SHOULD EIGHTEEN YEAR OLDS BE DRAFTED which rated distinguished.

Flucos Victorious

Flucos Nip Standardsville 9-8
Orange Game Washed Out
 Carysbrook, April 28

Fluvanna, on the strength of Dave Johnson's big bat, pushed across a run after two were out in the ninth inning to nip Standardsville 9-8 here today. Johnson singled sharply to right field to drive in Bob Saylor with winning marker. The Flucos collected nine hits off the offering of Ray Haney. Bob Saylor accounted for a third of the base knocks.

The May 1 engagement with Orange was rained out. The game will not be made up.

Fluvanna Beats Arvonias, 13-6
 May 8, Carysbrook

Home runs by Jimmy Perkins and Bobby Gianniny plus the six hit pitching performance of Butch Morris enabled Fluvanna to down Arvonias, 13-6.

Ramblings

Any starter course in psychology will include a list of human instincts, but there is one I've discovered that has not yet been included in a scientific treatise. It is the common and perfectly natural way any child gets out of work by finding something else to do that is more important. If he has to take his bath, (and that is work), he has to do his lessons first. If he has to do his lessons, he has to feed the dog first. If he has to feed the dog, he has to put away his bicycle first, and that is done by a circuitous route around the neighborhood and down the road and back. He is usually much too tired by the time we get out the tools and do a little mowing and digging to help with weeds. But today while I was in the position usually assumed to pull weeds, he was in the same position far back in the fields picking strawberries, very few of which were left by supertime. If set to watering the new shrubs and grass, it is found more advantageous to squirt the hose full force on a wasp's nest under the roof, thereby spraying the screen in the open window and the contents of the room. From all reports and observations, I'm convinced such behavior is instinctive — they all seem to turn out either normal or abnormal men and women, you can never tell which it's going to be.

Now that vacations are being planned, the camera stores will have a field day with sales of cameras and connected photography gadgets for the vacationing shutterbugs. How often I have wondered at the group you find on every trip—two to five people on a step, a wall, by a car that shuts off the view, or someplace where you don't dare walk between them, and the remaining members of the group about 12 feet away looking through the sight of a camera. A few shots to take home make a nice memento of a trip, but I sometimes think these people who go everywhere with a camera strung around their necks are more interested in showing where they've been than in knowing where they are. Me, I like to see the sights and while some folks are snapping the outside of a building, I can walk through it or around it or find out something about it. Post cards are cheaper and a sure thing when it comes to historic places of interest and I don't mind if the picture doesn't include me on the front steps. Along with summer comes snake-talk. To hear tell, you can't take a step off the pavement or you run the risk of stepping on a rattler or a water moccasin. There are a lot of harmless snakes (Continued on page five)

County Farm Notes

By P. H. France
Ensilage The First Cutting of Hay
 There are several good reasons to ensilage the first cutting of hay.
 1. You overcome many of the weather hazards associated with hay-making in the field at a season when the odds are in favor of frequent showers.
 2. The first crop of hay usually is stemmy, coarse and weedy, better adapted for silage than for hay.
 3. You can remove the first hay crop earlier, when its digestibility is highest, to make way for higher yields and better quality in the second cutting. The second cutting usually comes when temperatures and rainfall are more congenial for good hay-making.
 4. Ensilage the first crop of hay is insurance against a feed shortage when pastures are low. This could have a major influence on milk production level next fall and winter.
 5. When you ensilage the first crop you probably will make better use of time, labor and equipment than if you take a chance on the weather in making hay under the usual field-curing conditions.
 If you don't use a preservative, the crop must be wilted properly before it is ensiled — when you twist a wisp tightly by hand no moisture should appear. A couple of hours in the bright sun may be all that's necessary to wilt the crop.

 To take some of the gamble out of ensiling grasses and legumes, use molasses as a preservative. For legumes mixed with grasses, add about 60 pounds (5 gallons) of molasses gradually to the forage as it is blown into the silo. For mature legumes, such as first cutting alfalfa, add about 70 pounds (6 gallons); and for immature legumes add 80 pounds (7 gallons) per ton. The molasses will preserve the silage, even though the forage is rather moist when it is put in the silo. The molasses improves the flavor and adds to the feeding qualities of the silage. Don't add the molasses too fast. It may cause clogging in the blower-pipe.
 A precaution—check the silo to make sure it will stand the greater pressures of grass and legume silage. A few extra hoops around the lower half of the silo may keep an old silo from bursting.
Turkeys Graze Permanent Pasture Without Harm
 Permanent pasture will not be damaged by grazing turkeys on it if the turkeys are moved frequently.
 Moving the turkeys at regular intervals while they are on range not only prevents damage from over-grazing, but also is a safeguard against disease outbreaks. Proper grazing with turkeys will also improve the pasture by spreading manure evenly over the field.

Suggestions Given for Home Gardeners
 Keep your garden clean. As soon as a crop has finished bearing, remove the old plants from the surface of the soil.
 They may be turned under or placed in a compost pile, unless they are diseased or heavily infested with insects, in which case they should be burned.
 Rotate garden crops according to the family of the vegetable. This practice will help control insects and diseases. Crops which belong to the same family, such as cabbage and kale, should not be planted in the same area each year.
 Strains of varieties which are resistant to certain diseases should be used when possible, such as yellow-resistant strains of cabbage and rust-resistant asparagus. Always buy seed from reliable dealers and if possible get certified seed. Always plant certified Irish potatoes.
National 4-H Camp Delegates Named
 Four Virginians have been named to represent the State's 4-H club members at the National 4-H Club

Camp in Washington, D. C., June 17-24.
 They are: Paul Henry Kipps, Madison; George W. Cather, Frederick; Ann Masincupp, Augusta; and Eleanor Shropshire, Henry.
 To be named a national camp delegate is one of the highest honors a club member can receive. They are chosen on the basis of their 4-H record, community activities, and citizenship.
 This is the most recent of a long list of honors for the four delegates. Cather, Kipps, and Miss Shropshire are all former state winners in 4-H contests; and Miss Masincupp received the Danforth Foundation award in 1951 as the most outstanding girl in the county, and is the recipient of a $250 scholarship to Bridgewater for an essay contest. All of them have held many offices in their clubs and are serving as junior 4-H leaders.
 Theme of the camp as in years past, is "Know Your Government", and the delegates will have an opportunity to visit many governmental offices, including the Capitol and the senate and house of office buildings.
 They will be accompanied by Miss Eva Minix and J. W. Rogers, district agents for the VPI Agricultural Extension Service.
 Peak prices for hogs likely will be reached in July. On the average, prices of hogs at the midsummer peak are about 20 percent higher than at the low point which usually occurs in early December.

 You can maintain dry brood sows on ladino clover alone. A little corn and supplement containing protein of animal origin may help during the last six weeks of pregnancy.
 One billion tons of manure, the animal product of livestock on U. S. farms, if completely recovered, carefully preserved, and efficiently used, could increase the value of crop production by $6,000,000,000. Are you properly handling the manure produced on your farm?
 The U. S. cattle industry suffers huge losses each year because of grubs, lice, and other parasites. Grubs and lice alone claim a $135,000,000 share of the cattlemen's profit.
Ramblings
 around, and while I jump as high as anybody when I see one, I do not believe that only a dead snake is a good snake. I used to grit my teeth and bear it when a long black king snake would sun himself under a bedroom window of our house in Arizona, but a king snake can kill a rattler three times its size, and is also fond of mice. It was an unwritten law that a king snake was not to be killed. Garter snakes and runners that scuttle around much more frequently than the poisonous variety may be good target practice for the bad kind of snake, but I'd rather stay out of long grass any day than have to kill any of them.

 Here is a tip that could inspire much comment, comical and otherwise. I'll let the reader think up the possibilities of following this suggestion for keeping baby quiet. All I can think of is how little Hiawatha's face and hair would look after a few minutes of play. The custom originated with the Indians, natchery. For quieting baby, a sticky substance such as molasses was put on the baby's fingers and feathers were put in a little dish. Silence reigned while the feathers went from one finger to another. What worries me is what he did when he ran out of fingers to cover with feathers.

A Silly Alibi

Jackson (Miss.) Daily News

The American Trucking Association is publishing an advertisement in weekly and monthly magazines saying "the modern truck doesn't damage roads."

Well, who the heck is doing all the damage to our highways?

Is it possible that it is being done by rabbits hopping across the roads on moonlit nights?

The alibi offered by the trucking industry, as set forth in advertisements is as follows:

Design of all trucks is based on the same weight-distribution principles. These modern trucks are designed to more than meet road standards of weight distribution. It's the old snow shoe principle—you sink down in overshoes but not when you wear snow shoes—applied to truck weight engineering.

So remember when you see those big modern trucks rolling along with necessities for you, that they're not hurting the roads. Oh, yeah?

But if that guy wearing snow shoes weighed 60,000,000 pounds and moved over the road at sixty miles per hour, he surely would be doing damage, and a heluva lot of it, to the roadbed.

The fact remains that trucks are pounding our expensive paved roads to pieces and paying little for the privilege of so doing. The alibi above offered is as thin as soup served in a county poorhouse.

Country Lawyer

The Chief of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Mr. T. Coleman Andrews, is reported to have told a Committee of Congress that some actions of the Courts on tax matters in "nauseating." This would seem to indicate that the Courts have not been as rough on accused persons as the bureaucrat thinks they ought be. Perhaps it would suit him better if he and his bureau could simply get mad at a citizen and kick him around as they might determine.

The Richmond News Leader constantly editorializes along the line that the Courts should be deprived of discretion in punishment of those driving under the influence of alcohol and a mandatory jail sentence be imposed by the General Assembly.

But there is a very precious concept that places discretion in the Courts and that cannot be eliminated by either the bureaucrats or the professional reformers. That concept was written in the year 1215 into Magna Charta and was subsequently written into the Constitutions of Virginia and of the United States. This is the right to trial by Jury.

So long as that system can be substantially retained the people will control because it is the people that sit on Juries. Our legislative bodies can lay down any mandatory punishment that they want to but if that goes beyond that which seems right to the Jury the ends of justice are defeated and a "not guilty" verdict results. That is the way of things and it is a good way.

Justice demands that each case stand on its own merit and be determined upon the evidence as presented to the Court by both sides. The phrase "drunk driving" is an unfortunate one because it denotes drunkenness and in the minds of some, drunkenness means inability to walk at all or to sit up behind a steering wheel. Actually the law does not mention drunk driving at all. Instead it prohibits driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs. One need not be stupefied by liquor to be a dangerous menace upon the highway and it does not take much alcohol to influence one driving a car. Driving under the influence is people so long as we can retain the right of trial by Jury. And if the people are too lenient it is because of the whole situation. And the people are the victims of that situation.

LEADERSHIP OF VIRGINIA RECALLED BY CEREMONIES
Last week I had the privilege of accompanying President Eisenhower to Williamsburg, the Colonial Capital of Virginia, where he received an honorary degree and participated in the inauguration of Admiral Alvin D. Chandler as President of the College of William and Mary. My personal interest in this event was increased by the fact that Admiral Chandler's father, Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, a former President of William and Mary, was my English teacher at Richmond College. The son does credit to a distinguished father.

On May 15, 1926, as a member of Governor Byrd's staff I helped to entertain President Coolidge when he came to Williamsburg for the 150th anniversary of the Virginia Resolution of independence and to receive a degree. Restoration of 18th Century Williamsburg was just beginning then but last week President Eisenhower spoke in the Chamber of the House of Burgesses in the reconstructed Capitol and had in front of him the original document drafted by Edmund Pendleton and passed by the Virginia Convention on May 15, 1776.

To me the most significant feature of the program was the fact that for the first time a President of the United States spoke from the historic site where the foundation was laid for our American heritage of Constitutional Liberty.

This observance was important because it called national attention to the fact that Virginia declared her own independence and hauled down the British flag at Williamsburg fifty days before the Declaration of Independence was adopted at Philadelphia and in that intervening period, Virginia continued to lead the way by approving George Mason's Declaration of Rights, which became the basis for the Bill of Rights in the Federal Constitution; adopting a Plan of Government, which was the first successful State Constitution and a model for the Federal Constitution, and setting up an independent State government with Patrick Henry as governor.

The Williamsburg ceremony served also to recall the part six famous Lee brothers played in the birth of a new nation. The greatest orator of the six Richard Henry Lee offered in the Continental Congress the resolution adopted on July 2, 1776 to declare the independence of the Colonies. As author of the resolution Lee was entitled to be appointed chairman of the committee to draft it but partisan politics in the Virginia delegation shoved him aside in favor of Jefferson. Jefferson modestly proposed that John Adams draft the declaration but Adams stepped aside and insisted that Jefferson do it because, "You are a Virginian and a Virginian ought to appear at the head of this business."

Virginians must accept with responsibility, as well as view with pride, this tribute to the accomplishments of their forefathers. The Virginia Resolution for Independence was adopted in 1776 largely because the planter aristocrats of this colony regarded participation in public affairs as a duty and responsibility as well as a right and privilege. They did not consider matters of government as things to be left for those seeking personal gain or who had so few affairs of their own to attend to that they had time to spare.

Similarly today, the obligation placed on the United States as the leader of the world struggle to preserve individual liberty against the corrosive influence of Communism, can be met only if the most capable citizens of Virginia and other states are willing to recognize their individual responsibility. And that responsibility includes the substitution of courage for fear—courage based upon the faith that God governs in the affairs of men.

Wheat Reports Needed

John S. Farrar, chairman of PMA County Committee, appealed again this week to the Fluvanna farmers to come to the PMA office in Palmyra to file a wheat acreage report.

He explained that the reports are needed as part of a statewide survey to determine how much wheat was grown on each farm during the past three years. Farmers are asked to report wheat acreage, whether seeded for grain, green manure, cover crop, or for hay or silage. Mr. Farrar said he also wants a statement from farmers who grew no wheat, or who had a wheat failure during the past three years.

The wheat information will be used by PMA in establishing 1954 wheat acreage allotments. In view of the large carryover stocks and expected 1953 production, the total supplies on July 1, the beginning of the 1953-54 marketing year, will very likely be substantially larger than estimated domestic and export demand. This situation is apt to make it necessary for the Secretary of Agriculture to establish some form of production controls. Secretary Benson has already said that controls on the 1954 wheat crop are probable.

"Assembling this wheat data in our county and in the state is a tremendous job," Mr. Farrar said. "Farmers who will come to the PMA office on or before May 16 to report wheat acreage on the farms which they operated during the past three years will assist us greatly in completing our part of the survey."

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh
PTA Gets Stung by a "Bee"
The local PTA is feeling sheepish today. Seems they complained the youngsters weren't learning enough. Said they couldn't even spell. So the kids challenged them to a spelling bee.
"I was captain of the PTA'ers," "Doc" Brown told me. "Both teams made the first round just fine. But on the second round Speedy Taylor went down on 'efficiency.' Then his boy Chip, who happened to be next on the school team, rattled it right off. From then on it was murder!"
So now "Doc" says that the whole PTA is thinking of signing up for night school!
From where I sit, it always pays to look and think before you leap to conclusions. Take those folks who would deny me a temperate glass of beer without a moment's thought. They wouldn't want me to interfere with their personal preferences for, say, buttermilk. It's a good idea to think twice before you "spell out" rules for your neighbor.
