Valmont Dairy of Scottsville, owned and managed by Dr. L. R. Stinson, is modern, efficient and clean in every respect. The dairy is operated under the direction of C. E. Spencer, dairy foreman, who has been employed for 20 years, assisted by James A. Easton, J. E. Stinnett and Jack Smith.

Hay and ensilage are grown on the 540-acre farm, but the grain used in feeding the animals is purchased.

The dairy herd includes 102 animals of which 50 are milkers. The dairy is proud of its two bulls. One was purchased from the Longwater Farm in Massachusetts and the other from Blair's Rest Dairy in Richmond. The entire herd is pure-bred registered Guernsey stock.

The milk from the cows is taken into the dairy and cooled to take away the animal heat. From here it is placed in cans in a storage room and kept at a temperature below 40° F. The milk is then pasteurized, cooled immediately and bottled. Each week 500 gallons of bottled milk is sold locally in Scottsville and vicinity, and whatever is left over is sold in bulk.

The entire operation from milking the animals to the bottled milk and cleaning and sterilizing the equipment is completely electrified.

The Valmont Dairy produces premium milk that averages better than a 4% butter fat content and, also, has earned the right to show the caption "Golden Guernsey" on the bottle top.

The buildings, equipment and animals are constantly and carefully scrutinized by those in charge of the operation as well as local and state inspectors.

$10,000 Bond Set For Negro Held On Rape Charge

Setting a $10,000 bond, Judge B. W. Seay sent to the August 25 session of the Grand Jury the case of Walter James Woodson, 32, Negro, of Richmond, charged with the attempted rape of a middle-aged white woman of Fluvanna County near Columbia in Trial Justice court at Palmyra yesterday morning.

Commonwealth attorney Ralph R. Zehler and Defense Council P. A. L. Smith, former Commonwealth attorney of Goochland County, exchanged heated words when the issue of the bond came up. The prosecutor stated that he felt that no bond should be allowed in view of the seriousness of the charge. The defense stated that bond must be allowed. Each offered to eat the page out of the State statutes which backed the belief of the other.

Chief witness for the state during the long morning session was the woman who told the court the following story:

Woodson came to her home about 9 p.m. on Wednesday, August 6, and beat on the door. As she was in bed she asked who was there. "Walter Woodson" she claimed the man replied. Woodson, it seemed, had come to borrow a candle for his "moms." The woman who was in bed at the time, told the court that she got up and found a small candle for Woodson and then he asked for matches. She supplied him with the matches, she continued, and then he insisted that a neighbor wanted to see her. Dressed only in her night gown she told Walter Woodson that she would see the neighbor, a Mr. Butler, the next day.

Then, she stated, Walter Woodson broke into the house and grabbed her around the throat with his hands, choking her. She falteringly continued that he had dragged her first into the kitchen, then out on the front walk, and finally about 100 feet away to a barn. At this time, she continued, neighbors, told of her troubles by an 11-year old girl who was staying with her, came to her rescue and her attacker fled.

There was no doubt in her mind, stated the woman, as to Walter Woodson's purpose in the assault. The defense staged somewhat of a surprise by calling the young girl in an effort to present some conflict in the evidence that had been given. Mr. Zehler protested the questioning of the girl and the court decided the matter by informing both sides that he had decided to turn it over to the Grand Jury.

The $10,000 bond was not met at the end of the court session and state troopers returned Woodson to the County Jail at Charlottesville. Mr. Smith made it clear that he was planning to protest the bond as being "excessive" and Mr. Zehler countered that he would fight to have the right of bond removed entirely.

Mr. Smith, garbed in a light purple sport coat, creamed colored trousers, blue shirt and brown, blue and yellow striped tie, read the charges in the warrant then entered a plea of not guilty for his client.

At Mr. Zehler's request the court room was cleared during the woman's testimony, except for those officially involved in that phase of the preliminary hearing, the mother and wife of the defendant, and members of the press. Besides the Sun reporter there were also two reporters present from the Afro-American Richmond Negro newspaper.

George Washington was born in Virginia, at that time a British Colony.

Cale Asserts County To Maintain Adequate School Here As Long As Enrollment Warrants

Morals Case Draws Large TJ Crowd; Other Cases Heard

More than 50 persons crowded into Scottsville's Trial Justice Court last Thursday morning as a morals case on the docket attracted wide attention.

Judge Sydney Watson closed the court for the hearing.

Judge Watson found Mrs. Elsie Johnson, 38, and Richard Davis, 20, both guilty as charged. He fined each $25 and costs for their misconduct under the Scottsville High School ball park grandstand at 4 p.m. on Saturday, July 19.

Another case that had attracted a great deal of pre-trial interest was dismissed when the Judge "bent over backwards" in regard to charges of "assault and battery" against Mrs. Ethel Jones of Scottsville.

Mrs. Jones had been charged with beating her daughter, 18-year old Juanita Jones, severely with a leather belt. The girl's 14-year old brother was also before the court for aiding his mother.

After a whipping, Juanita had leaped from the second story window over Harding's Restaurant suffering injuries serious enough to be admitted to a hospital in Charlottesville.

Protesting that she was merely doing her "motherly duty" in "disciplining her daughter, Mrs. Jones admitted that she had "whipped her too hard." Both Mrs. Jones and her daughter agreed to settle differences amicably in the future so Judge Watson dismissed the case.

In all there were nine cases tried during the long morning session and a total of $120 in fines meted out. Other cases were as follows:

Julian Jackson, drunk in the town of Scottsville, $5 and costs.

James Reed, Negro, drunk in the town of Scottsville, $5 and costs. As Reed had spent two weeks in jail awaiting court, the judge suspended both fine and costs.

Bennie Gaines, Negro, and Waddell Barrett, Negro, were both found guilty of fighting in the hallway to the colored section of Lee's Restaurant and fined $10 and costs.

Garfield Britton, who received a beating at the hands of J. B. Burdett at Harding's Restaurant, was fined $10 and costs for starting the brawl. Conceding that Burdett was forced to hit Britton in self-defense he thereby changed his plea of guilty to one of not guilty and dismissed him.

Frank Page was fined $5 and costs for being drunk in the town of Scottsville on August 2.

Bernice Herndon, who appeared in court on July 17 and pleaded for a delay to get some "important" witnesses, showed up without his witnesses Thursday and was found guilty of being drunk in the town of Scottsville. Besides a $25 fine plus costs and a 30-day (Continued on page eight)

"We will maintain as adequate a school in Scottsville as the enrollment warrants," stated Paul Cale, superintendent of Albemarle County schools in an interview with the Sun.

We were attempting to get a slant on the present debate in regard to whether students in this area should attend the present high school here in Scottsville or go to the new Consolidated High School being built just outside of Charlottesville.

Two delegations have approached the County School Board to present their side of the present conflict.

The first group consisting of some 50 persons from the immediate Scottsville area went to the board to try and learn just what the board planned in regard to the high school here in this community. They were informed at that time that the board is planning to make major improvements at this school just as soon as work on the consolidated school near Charlottesville is completed.

The second group, claiming to represent roughly 60 percent of the graduating classes of Scottsville High in the past five years, requested that the board provide transportation for students in Esmont, Alberene, Hatton, Howardsville, and Schuyler in order that they might attend the new school.

This delegation, some 16 strong, argued that unless the board planned to give the Scottsville school all the advantages to be found at the new school then they felt that it was only fair that their children be permitted to make use of the facilities of the larger school.

Trade shop, practical nursing, fine arts, etc., are but a few of the extras that will be offered at the consolidated school. Mr. Cale pointed out that with the limited student body at Scottsville it would be impracticable to provide that school with all these classes.

With nearly 1,000 students to attend the new school as against about 135 high school students at Scottsville, there is no way to offer identical curriculums, Mr. Cale stated.

Many of the students now attending the Scottsville school would have to go many more miles to reach the consolidated school it was shown. These students would be forced to spend as much as an hour extra travel time in going to and coming from the school.

The Scottsville school is an accredited high school and will remain so as long as the student body maintains its present rate. If any of the present students were to switch to the other school it would become necessary to limit the subjects offered and thereby lower the standing of the school, according to Mr. Cale.

"We will do what the majority of the people of that area want us to do," Mr. Cale said. So far no decision has been reached and the board is waiting to find out just what the groups as a whole desires, whole desires.

Stinson For Eisenhower

Dr. L. R. Stinson, one of Scottsville's senior inhabitants, stated this week that although he has always voted the Democratic ticket in the past that his vote this election year would go to Dwight D. Eisenhower. "Mr. Stevenson is a good man," said Dr. Stinson, "but by voting for Eisenhower we can get some of those other people out of Washington."

Birth Announced

A daughter was born at 8:30 a.m. August 7 at Martha Jefferson Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. James Staggell, of Manteo.

Mixed Reactions Greet Eisenhower Editorial

By David Moffitt

Mixed reactions by residents of Scottsville greeted the Sun's editorial last Thursday endorsing Dwight D. Eisenhower for president of the United States.

Among the younger residents of town the majority seemed to feel that such a change was well in order and most were pleased that this newspaper has taken the stand that it has.

Some of the town's oldtimers were abashed that the paper should go against the creed of the "Solid South." One defender of the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket argued that to divert from the straight Democratic ticket was something bordering on "sacrilegious."

Biggest argument made by those opposed to this paper's stand was that "we've never had it so good." They point to the sad state of finances in 1932 and state that a change will surely lead Scottsville back to those deplorable days.

"Not so," say Eisenhower fanatics. Especially the younger faction, which saw duty during World War II and some during the present conflict, point out that prices are higher than ever and they don't have anything left at the end of the year after expenses and taxes are met.

The forthcoming November national election seems slated for one of the hottest contests in this area in modern times. There doesn't seem to be much debate between the two major parties but rather a decided split in the Democratic ranks between those who desire to continue with the present trends and those who are opposed to the "socialistic" moves of the "Fair Deal" and desire to swing the tide in a different direction.

Those in Scottsville who remember the hotly disputed Al Smith—Herbert Hoover contest of 1928 state that they expect the 1952 election to stir up even more interest in this vicinity than that one did.

Scottsville Wins

Conceding Red Hill 10 big runs in the top half of the third inning, Scottsville finally nailed down a 11-10 victory in a tri-county baseball league game here last Sunday.

Local manager Hughes was on the mound for Scottsville until the disastrous third when a couple of walks, a couple of miscues, and seven solid hits sent him skeltering for shelter in place of Thacker who held the visitors scoreless the remainder of the game.

Scottsville tallied their runs slowly but steadily. One in the first, another in the second when Austin Easton flushed out a rabbit with a long home run, one in the fifth, one in the sixth, four fat runs in the seventh, and then finally victory with three runs in the last half of the eighth. Hughes' double redeemed himself by tying up the game and then he stole home with the winning run.

Feeder Calf Sales Set in Virginia--
The 1952 feeder calf sale schedule, rounding out 14 years of similar sales in Virginia, has been announced by the VPI Agricultural Extension Service.

The 1952 sales will start off September 19 at Ewing, where the first such sale was held in 1939. Others are scheduled: September 23, Christiansburg; September 24, Charlottesville; September 25, Culpeper; September 26, Orange; September 30, Christiansburg; October 1, Buena Vista; October 2, Lynchburg; October 3, Bedford; October 3, Staunton; October 7, Roanoke; October 8, Richmond; October 9, Harrisonburg; October 10, Winchester; October 13, Monterey; October 14, Abingdon; October 14, Front Royal; October 15, Fredericksburg; October 15, Galax; October 17, Wytheville; October 17, Petersburg; October 21, Front Royal; October 24 Danville; and October 24, Ewing.

Tracing the growth of the feeder calf sale program in Virginia, Extension Service officials note that 17,278 animals were sold last year for an average price of $39.37, as compared with 5,102 animals at an average price of $14.43 in 1945—the first year for which complete data are available. The number of calves consigned, and the average prices, have shown a steady increase since that time.

We, in Fluvanna, are a part of the Richmond Area Feeder Calf Sale. If you are interested in further details of the sale, get in touch with me.

Temporary Silos Can Be Used to Store Corn Cut for Silage--

Farmers who are finding it necessary to cut corn for silage because of the severe drought in many parts of the state will find temporary silos the answer to proper storage where there are no permanent silos.

G. D. Kite associate agricultural engineer at VPI says the drought is reducing hay and corn crops to the danger point, and that some corn will have to be cut for silage. Some soybeans also may have to be cut for silage to assure an adequate supply of feed for late fall and winter.

A trench silo can be used to advantage on many farms. A bulldozer or power scoop can dig a trench having a capacity of 100 tons, in 10 to 12 hours. The natural earth banks can be used for several years. Concrete or masonry walls will eventually be needed. A trench 8 feet deep, 8 feet wide at the bottom and 12 feet wide at the top, and 70 feet long will hold 95 tons.

An above-ground silo made of snow fencing or welded wire and lined with a reinforced asphalt paper is easily erected and will provide good storage for silage. The fencing or wire can be used for many years if properly cared for. However, new paper will be needed each year. Material will cost $75 to $150 depending on the size. Reinforced asphalt paper and snow fence or welded wire are usually available at building material or farm supply stores.

The height of the silo should be no greater than the diameter. A silo 16 feet in diameter with 4 rings (total height 16 feet) will hold 45 to 50 tons.

Hot Weather Aids Listed for Poultrymen--

Paint saves poultry—on hot days.

Lee W. Herrick, associate poultry husbandman at VPI, says painting poultry house roofs will help keep them cooler in the summertime. He cites the experience of a Weedonville poultryman, Charles T. Egan, who has painted the metal roof of his poultry house with aluminum paint, and who says the inside temperature has been lowered by 5 to 10 degrees.

Poultrymen with a tar paper roof can use a special aluminum paint with an asphalt base.

Herrick says extreme heat often means losses in the poultry flock. Birds of all ages may die from the heat, and laying hens often slow down or stop egg production. Slow growth, caused by a drop in feed consumption in hot weather, means losses for broilers and turkey growers.

There are other ways to keep poultry houses cool. Many farmers make openings in the sides of the houses, often on all four sides. Mrs. Kitty Weaver, Aldie, built a poultry house with large frames hung on door tracks which provide the side wall. These cover all the space from the ground to the roof, and are covered with a glass substitute. To open the house, she slides several of the frames to one area.

Other aids in hot weather include roof ventilators; extra waterers; sprinkling the ceiling, wall and floor; and reducing the number of birds in the house. Fans inside the house help when there is no breeze.

Plans are available for the Agricultural Extension Service at VPI for new, large, wide houses with wide doors in both ends, windows in both sides, "A" roofs and

All of us enjoy cake making and frequently we hunt for a new and very appetizing recipe.

Try the Banana Cake recipe which follows for a special delight to all members of your family.

BANANA CAKE
1½ cups sugar
½ cup margarine or butter
2 eggs
½ teaspoon baking powder
2¼ cups cake flour
¾ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup bananas, lightly mashed (3 large)
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup sour milk

Mix sugar, butter, eggs in large mixer bowl and beat until well mixed. Sift flour before measuring. Add remaining dry ingredients and sift again. Lightly mash bananas to make 1 cup. Add bananas, with the vanilla, to butter, sugar, egg mixture and mix well. Add ½ the flour mixture, all the milk and then the rest of the flour mixture. Pour into greased and floured pan. Bake at 350° F. for 30 minutes. Remove from oven. Over the top sprinkle the contents of 1 can of coconut. Then pour over it the following mixture which you have prepared while the cake was baking:

10 Tablespoons brown sugar
6 Tablespoons butter
6 Tablespoons cream (off top of milk)

Cook this just enough for the butter to melt and the mixture starts to boil. Place under broiler and brown.

roof ventilators. The new houses are adaptable to extremes in weather. They can be closed tight in winter, and opened wide in summer. Built with concrete or cinder blocks, they are much cooler than narrow houses with shed roofs. If you are interested in further information, let me know and I will be glad to assist you.

2 cups sugar
1½ cups egg whites
½ cup maraschino cherries (sliced or chopped)
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon vanilla
1½ teaspoons cream of tartar
1 teaspoon almond flavoring.

Slice or chop cherries fine and drain off liquid thoroughly. Dry between towels. Sift flour once, then measure. Measure sugar and divide into two equal parts. Add ½ the sugar to the flour and sift the two ingredients together 4 times. Sift the remaining sugar 4 times. Do all of this before starting to beat the egg whites. Add the salt to the egg whites and beat until foamy. Add the cream of tartar. Continue beating until stiff, but not dry. Then add ½ the sugar to the egg whites, 2 tablespoons at a time. Add the flavoring. Fold in the flour and sugar mixture, adding to the egg white mixture, 2 tablespoons at the time. Fold in with slow, careful strokes. Pour into ungreased cake pan, half of the batter. Sprinkle half of the cherries over the batter. Pour in the other half of the cake batter sprinkle remaining cherries on top. Cut down through the batter with a case knife to remove large air bubbles. Bake for 65 minutes. When removed from oven, invert pan on wire cake cooler until cold, then carefully remove from pan.

Time and labor saving devices are essential in the successful operation of a business, industrial plant or a farm. V. S. Fox, Reards, Virginia, realizing this, has made and has placed in operation a power-driven electric saw which he uses to saw fire wood for cooking and heating. Fox, in his spare time and with a hack saw, made the frame of two-inch angle iron. A shaft was placed on the frame, with a thirty-inch saw on one end and a flat belt pulley on the other. He purchased a 5 horse-power motor and installed it close to the saw with a belt connecting the saw and the motor. Fox stated that it took him five minutes to cut the average log with an ax. With his saw the same job can be accomplished in about a half a minute. With a main route to look after, 500 apple trees and a 75 acre farm, Fox takes advantages of every time and labor-saving device.

Unchallenged Leader

Million of people come in daily visual contact with the huge commercial motor trucks. We see these boxcars-on-tires thundering down the highways, and many assume that they are responsible for the greater part of the national transportation job. But actually the railroads move more tons of freight more miles than all other forms of transportation combined. And they move nearly five times as many ton-miles as all the inter-city trucks put together.

The situation is about the same when it comes to "human freight". Each year, the American people make almost 500 million trips by rail, and travel a total of 34 billion miles. That's more miles traveled between cities than by all other forms of transportation rolled into one.

Furthermore, the railroads do all this on tracks which they pay for—not on roads which are principally paid for by private motorists, farmers and businesses which operate small trucks for their own purposes. The railroads don't get a nickel of tax subsidy—either direct or indirect. All the rest of the commercial carriers thus run in large part at the expense of the taxpayers.

In the case of the kingsized motor trucks, highway damage caused by excessive weights has reached the critical point. Unbiased and exhaustive tests have proven beyond argument that weight is the biggest single factor in highway wear and tear. And it is the general public which is called on to meet that tremendous bill.

Country Lawyer

By Walter Johnson

During the fiscal year from July 1, 1951 to June 30, 1952 the federal government took $62, 128, 606, 579 from the earnings of the people in taxes. The size of that figure is so great that the mind of man cannot well grasp it. To help us better understand the significance of that figure a gentleman has reduced it to material things.

He says that this sixty-two billion of dollars would buy a $300 television set, a $300 washing machine, a $375 refrigerator, a $75 radio and a $500 vacation for every family in the United States. In other words the sum amounts to $1550 for every family.

Also he says it would build 2,000 new $10,000 homes or ten new two million dollar hospitals in each and every one of the 3,070 counties in the United States. If applied to private debt that sum would pay off every mortgage on every home and every farm in our entire country.

Every cent of that vast sum was taken from the people in the form of direct or indirect taxes. It was taken from the people in addition to the taxes paid by them into the local and state treasuries.

Why should the living standard of all the people be so tremendously reduced by taxes and who is responsible?

Some of us like to say that we have high taxes because of a spendthrift President but that isn't all of it by any means. The President does not levy taxes. He cannot spend one cent unless and until such expenditures is authorized by Congress.

It is Congress that lays the taxes upon the people and it is the Congress that authorizes expenditure of the money. And, getting closer to home, it is we, the people, that select the Congress. The Congress is the chosen representatives of the people. In theory each and every citizen has a voice in Congress through his representative in that body.

When a majority of us vote for a particular man for Congress that man speaks in Congress for every person within the Congressional District that he represents.

Certainly President Truman is the most irresponsible spendthrift ever to occupy the White House. He consistently urges that Congress lay more and more taxes and appropriate more and more money for him to spend in what may properly be called mischievous interference with our own internal affairs and in the internal affairs of all other countries. We let him do it. We elect a Congress that lets him do it.

We should think about all that this election year when we will vote on every member of the House of Representatives and one-third of the members of the Senate. Most of those running for reelection will assure us that they are for economy but look at the record of Congress and you will recognize that many or most members of Congress talk one way and vote another way.

We are faced with a political situation under which the nominees of both major political parties stand on the proposition that peace results from meddling in the internal affairs of other nations. That means spending great sums of money. It means that we step into every other country to influence political conduct within that country with money.

The only real hope that we have is to improve our Congress and that means to send men there who have more steel in their backbones and who may be relied upon to vote and to talk in the same vein. Among the nine Virginia Representatives only one can be said to be of that type. Of the two Virginia Senators one does talk quite firmly along the lines of economy and, upon occasion, he does combine with other Senators to knock out some particularly extreme proposal.

In the overall picture it is well to recognize and give heed to the fact that despite a spendthrift

President we can slow down extravagance and waste of our substance by electing a better and stronger and more able Congress.

Ramblings

There aren't many towns left where the dial telephone system hasn't banished the sound of the friendly voice saying "Number please." Of course the dial system saves time, provided you know the number you want, and are reasonably sure the person you're calling is at that number. But when you're used to a local operator who takes enough personal interest in you to say, when the phone doesn't answer, "I think Mrs. Jones is playing bridge tonight," or "I think you can get them at 145" the dial seems a cold proposition. You are left with an empty buzz, and a "where do we go from here?" feeling. Old timers in any town haven't gotten over the habit of asking "Central" for the store or friend they wish to call by name instead of number, even though this is a nuisance to a busy operator. The change to a dial phone is even harder for them. The telephone companies are keeping up with modern progress, but at the loss of the "voice with a smile."

Another old custom went out a long time ago, but according to what we read, it seems to be coming back in fashion. That is reading aloud. In the old days, the head of the house was frequently accustomed to reading out loud from the family Bible, received by varied reactions from the members of his family. Whether that was classed as recreation or duty, the reading of great literature or just light poetry was a pleasant way to pass the time. Nowadays you rarely find a family that enjoys such a pleasure, but it has many good features about it. For one thing, more than one member of a group can improve or divert his mind and at the same time be getting the mending done, the woodwork painted, vegetables or fruit prepared, or just relax after a hard day. Material for reading aloud is easily available, for even old, familiar books sound better and are more memorable when they are read out loud, once the reader loses himself in the subject and does not worry about how he sounds. Reading aloud comes naturally to children who have been taught to do it in school, and if they are encouraged and listened to, it is fine practice in developing a good speaking voice. The reader and listener are brought into a shared experience, and last but not least, it is far cheaper than going to the movies, and apt to leave a more lasting impression and you have a choice of material not found on radio programs.

Much has been written in both prose and poetry that sounds better when read aloud than it does when read silently. Stephen Vincent Benet's immortal "John Brown's Body" is one of the selections by Charles Laughton, who has gained a wide audience through his public reading. Longfellow, Kipling, Mark Twain, have all come to life through his readings, and many well-known actors and actresses are now recording their readings on records for those who would rather listen to them than to someone they know.

The stories that have stayed longest in my memory are ones I heard aloud at home—Robin Hood and Treasure Island became more exciting because they were read in nightly installments by my father, even though the reading period, unlike the radio programs, was terminated suddenly sometimes in the middle of a sentence when sleep overtook either the reader or the listener!

McNamara-Phillips

Miss Kathleen Elizabeth Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Randolph Phillips, was married Saturday afternoon at four o'clock to Ensign Sheridan James McNamara, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis John McNamara, of Rhinelander, Wis.

The Rev. T. E. O'Connell, rector of St. Paul's Catholic Church in Richmond, performed the double ring ceremony before a natural setting of shrubbery on the lawn at Belle Haven where the bride was born and which has been the home of her mother's family for more than fifty years. The wedding procession came from and returned to the house while Mrs. T. E. Bruce played the traditional selections on the piano from the porch. Mrs. A. W. Mayo sang the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria."

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore a white embroidered organdy, floor length gown with a finger-tip veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley centered with a purple-throated orchid.

Her maid of honor was a first cousin, Miss Barbara Jordan, of Richmond, who wore a lavender cotton lace dress, ankle length and carried purple asters.

Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Joan McNamara, sister of the bridegroom, of Rhinelander, Wis., Miss Ann Padgett, of Scottsville, Mrs. Alfred Schooler, of Greenville S. C., and Mrs. Joseph Savoca, of Norfolk. They wore light green costumes and carried lavender asters. Murray John McNamara, of Richmond, was his brother's best man, and the groomsmen were Joseph Savoca, Robert Wellner, Richard Stamey and William Houston.

White flowers were used throughout the house for decorations. A reception was held on the lawn immediately after the ceremony. The bride's table with a three-tiered cake, candelabra with white candles, and white flowers was set on the lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. McNamara left after the reception for a northern wedding trip. For traveling she changed to a purple suit with matching accessories and wore the orchid from her bouquet.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wood Jordan, Miss Claire McCarthy, Mrs. H. G. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Murray McNamara, Miss Sabra Bateman, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph May and Mrs. S. B. Drianard, all of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Pitts, of Bloomfield, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Hammond and Mrs. Laura Babb, of Hampton; Mrs. Richard Stamey, of North Carolina; Mrs. Joel Hannah, of Arvonnia; Mrs. Fletcher Duncan, of Palmyra; Vernon Brelenbaum, of Ebporia; Mrs. Genevieve Paulson of Encinas, California; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Richliet McMillan and Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Brooks Parler, of Columbia, S. C.

The couple will be at home after August 20 at Norfolk, where Ensign McNamara has been assigned to duty.

Woodrow Wilson issued the first Mother's Day proclamation.

Groundwork for better communities

How our national advertising paves the way for better living, better business, here in town

Every day, industries throughout America are looking for locations for new plants. To whatever town is selected, a new plant brings new job opportunities, new business for local merchants, new sources of tax revenue, new people, new ideas.

To attract desirable new industry to the area we serve, we and our American Gas and Electric affiliates are advertising the advantages of our part of the country in publications read by thousands of industrial executives who decide where new plants will go.

The advertising tells about resources in our territory, about labor skills here, about the availability of dependable, low-cost electricity. It offers the services of our staff of plant-site specialists—men whose job it is to know about taxes, utilities, municipal services, water, transportation, housing, and the many other details industrialists must have to locate a plant most profitably.

Through space in business papers and by direct mail, this year's AGE advertising will make 4,000,000 "calls" on business men all over America. It's a big job, a national job—but the benefits, finally, come down to communities like this one, where you and we both, as citizens, have a stake in today and in the future.

Alberene Wins

Alberene's Tex Tyler struck out nine Rubber Plant batters Sunday as his teammates pounded out a dozen hits for a one-sided 10-0 win at Alberene.

It was another off day for the Plant in the Tri-County baseball league as they committed five errors and were unable to score although they left 10 men stranded on the bases.

Veteran Billy Goodman hurled for the Plant nine but just didn't seem to have it. Besides being tagged for five doubles and seven singles, the local manager gave up seven bases on balls.

Jim Childress was the only local batsman able to solve Tyler's throwing as he rapped out three singles in four tries to raise his Year's batting average to a neat .474.

Corn Shocks Used to Be Sign of Fall; Now Driers Replacing Them

By IRA MILLER
Farm Electrification Bureau
Give an artist a rural scene to paint and—if it's fall—chances are he'll work in corn shocks someplace in the picture. They look like open country. And, a few years ago, were typical of harvest time on the farm.

But things have happened to change the picture. An increasing amount of corn is being picked and dried mechanically these days. This development is moving corn shocks out of their customary fall role. For shocks used to be one of the farmer's chief methods for drying corn.

TYPICAL INSTALLATION of crop drier in use in single crib.

Now fans are taking over this important drying chore. Operated by motors of 5 horsepower or larger, fans deliver an air volume of 5 to 10 cubic feet per minute per bushel. Corn may be dried satisfactorily without supplementary heat if the temperature is 60 degrees or above and the relative humidity 65% or below.

When heat is needed, there are crop driers available which can handle this job. Such units have built-in heaters and motor-driven fans, as well as thermostats and other controls to keep the temperature and air flow at correct drying levels.

Both single and double cribs may be used for drying, provided a few recommendations are followed and minor alterations made. First, install the fan at the entrance of the crib and seal off all space around the fan. In double cribs, seal up the other doorway as well. Tight-sided buildings should have adequate openings around the top of the cribs so moisture laden air can escape. The installation of a slatted "A" frame on the floor of single cribs will help speed up the drying job and make it more satisfactory. Air is blown into the frame and moves up through the corn piled on top and around it. Where space permits, fans or crop driers may be located in the driveway of double cribs and the air blown directly into side bins as desired. Be sure that air passes through all of the corn.

The development of mechanical drying methods and pickers enable farmers to harvest corn earlier. This enables them to clear fields for early seeding of small grains or cover crops, reduces the chances of loss from insect pests and cuts down possible damage from fall storms. Artificial drying also gives the farmer control over pre-crop storage problems, thus helping him to by-pass soft corn worries.
