Bob Bryan, Learned Printing Trade From His Father; Had Tough Job With Weekly

By Elizabeth Wimer

There has always been an atmosphere of adventure about the printing business, and with the ups and downs which it entails, one is almost sure to find a printer a most entertaining sort to chat with.

Bob Bryan of Scottsville is no exception. When he is not printing he most often is talking to someone, and has a keen interest in all that goes on in the community. Bob, (he was christened Robert Lee Bryan), is also an ex-newspaper man, having been a "jack-of-all-trades" on the Scottsville News from 1938 to 1944. He also set type for the Aulander, N. C., Advance from 1925 to 1927. This probably accounts for the fact that he is not used to keeping regular hours, and has been known to run off a job in the middle of the night to accommodate a person who has to have it done by morning, and he once got out of bed with high fever to do a printing job for a lady who had traveled from another town to bring it to him.

Bob was born in Charlottesville, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bryan. He was practically born in a print shop, he says, starting to help his father by running errands in his shop, the Virginia Printing Company, when he was five years old. He attended public school in Charlottesville, learned the printing trade from his father, and worked first in Aulander, N. C., and at the University of Virginia. After his father's death, Bob carried on the business in Charlottesville for two or three years before he came to Scottsville. During this time, he also entered the weatherstripping business on the side, and he frequently takes on a job of weatherstripping when the printing business slows up.

The toughest job he ever tackled, he said, was getting out the Scottsville News, a weekly paper, during a week when there was zero weather, snow and ice, and the mail could not get through. No news or advertising was sent in, and since it was practically impossible to get around, and print the paper too, he managed to put it out all by himself while a helper stoked the stove to keep the ink from freezing. He recalls that the only fresh news he had out of Scottsville that week was that a colored man froze to death, and he managed to stretch it out to a two-column article.

Now he has his own shop in the basement of his home on Harrison Street, and prints just about everything except a newspaper. He hopes to put in more equipment, he said. His customers are not only local, but he does work for people as far as Washington, D. C. as well as in Richmond and Charlottesville.

Bob is a member of the Scottsville Lions Club, the Scottsville Volunteer Fire Department, the Monticello Guard Veterans Association which he helped to organize.

A favorite and productive pastime in the spring and summer is the Bryan vegetable garden. "I like to get my butter beans fresh and clean from the garden," Bob said. "You don't get them the same way in the grocery store." He also raises tomatoes, snap beans and other vegetables.

Mrs. Bryan is the former Miss Marie Hamilton of Charlottesville.

The Bryans have two little girls, Mildred Lee and Nancy Carolyn.

Body Of Drowning Victim Is Recovered

The body of a negro man who fell in the James river at Howardsville Saturday while fishing was found Wednesday floating on the river about a mile downstream.

Robert Lewis Baber, about 17, who lives on Route 621 east of Howardsville, saw the body in the river about 10 a. m. Wednesday morning. Meredion (red) Payne, of Esmont, who was in Howardsville Wednesday morning, went downstream in his motor-equipped boat and brought the body back to the village.

Deputy Sheriff James W. Coombs is investigating the finding of the body for the sheriff's office. Dr. E. D. Davis of Crozet has been called in to serve as coroner in the case.

The dead man was Russell Green, 21-year-old farm laborer, from Faber. He and his brother-in-law, George Fitch, were fishing on "the point," where the Rockfish River enters the James at Howardsville, and Green apparently fell in the river while Fitch was temporarily absent from the steep, slippery bank.

Awarded Scholarship

Robert Lee Holt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Holt, of Aurora Indiana, formerly of Scottsville, has been awarded an Indiana State scholarship effective with the opening of the fall semester at Purdue University.

The Holts operated the Snowden Dairy Farm at Scottsville until they moved to Indiana a few years ago. Mrs. Holt is the sister of Merrill L. Carter and Emmitt Lee Carter who now reside at Scottsville.

J. W. Bowers demonstrating corn sheller at R. T. Williams farm.

Labor is one of industry's major problems. Regardless of the size, from a 1000-man operation to a one-man operation, labor is pre-eminent.

R. T. Williams, Alberene, was faced with this problem on his farm. He had a hand-operated corn-shelling machine. For a satisfactory operation it required two men to operate the corn sheller, one to turn the crank and the other the feed corn into the machine. Long hours and hard work were necessary.

To eliminate these handicaps, Williams converted the hand operation to a power-driven operation. A 1-3 h. p. motor was connected by pulleys and belt, to a discarded Chevrolet truck transmission. This transmission reduced the speed from the motor to the speed required by the corn sheller, which also connects to the transmission by a belt and pulley.

This arrangement eliminated the work of one man. Now Williams can shell 6 to 8 bushels of corn in a half hour's time with a minimum of effort.

Here again foresight and ingenuity came to the front and changed the working conditions for the better on one of the local farms.

Get The Ad Reading Habit

Ramblings

This is a week of much excitement among certain groups of people, while the rest of us go along about our everyday business without much concern as to what it means to be graduating, either from high school or college. Members of the clergy seem to be in great demand, from the headlines in the papers, for not only baccalaureate sermons, but formal commencement addresses, or informal talks to the senior classes at some colleges. This may mean a step in the right direction for the next generation. It would seem that the secret of a successful life, or the inspiration to lead one, could more likely be given by a student of the soul, and the mental and spiritual problems that people have than a tycoon who has unlocked the door to fame and fortune by smart business practice. Right now the world is a slightly shaky place to walk out into.

With a good education and the tools with which to intelligently get along in a career, a young man or woman will still need strength and faith to meet whatever ups or downs occur, and it is a cinch that the world (isn't that the usual thing that a graduate always goes out into?) is going to go up or down—it may be plunged into war, or eternal peace. Or it may be a personal world that a graduate must learn to handle. A great many of the tips and hints given by successful people in other walks of life revolve back to the basic qualities which have so often been out of Fashion. Winning friends and influencing people is nothing more than the old quality of being a good Christian and loving thy neighbor as thyself. A minister knows that a man who feels that he is not alone, but lives with the strength of his religion, will be more likely to succeed than the fearful and the selfish.

The transition from being looked up to by the undergraduates to a world where you are looked down on as a beginner in a job, or even in marriage, is sometimes hard to take. But this week, the graduates will be king or queen for a day and they make the most of it!

We made a Sunday call on Sunday, the little kid who grew to be a shrub-eating goat, and was given away a few weeks ago after she had mowed down everything we didn't want on the place, and some that we did. We are happy to report that she is contented in her new home and sleeps every night four feet off the ground in an abandoned rabbit cage. I have heard that the higher a goat can get off the ground, the better it likes it. So she has graduated from chicken coop to rabbit pen!

The bride was given in marriage by her father, J. S. Leonard. Mrs. Edith Moore, of Manassas was matron of honor. Alvin E. Melton of Washington, D.C. served as best man. Ushers were, Richard Payne and Thomas W. Payne of Kent's Store.

A reception was given at the home of the bride. After the wedding trip the couple will make their home in Washington, D.C.

Dairymen!

BOOST dairy profits

LOWER feed costs

with electric elevators

Labor is high, taxes are high, and so are a lot of other things you can't control. But you can boost your income by lowering costs... and an electric elevator can be a big help to you on that account, as a lot of successful dairy farmers know.

Electric elevators move things for pennies that you'd figure in dollars if done by hand. And they do it fast. More than one crop's been saved because an electric elevator has enabled a farmer to get it in before bad weather broke. (An electric grain or hay dryer pays off here, too!)

Our rural engineers will be glad to help you plan money-saving conveying and drying systems to your own specific needs. Their assistance is yours for the asking.

a Single Shingle on this

RUBEROID

Double Coverage TITE-ON Roof

The house in the above photo was blown more than three feet off its foundation by a mid-west tornado—yet not one RuberoiD Tite-On Shingle came loose!

Every storm brings new evidence of Tite-On's windproof superiority. The secret: Each Tite-On Shingle interlocks with adjacent shingles at four points and is anchored by concealed nails at four points! Assembled, they make virtually a one-piece roof. Double Coverage Tite-Ons overlap to form two complete shingle layers—double protection, double insulation! They're easy to apply quickly. Come in and see samples, today!

Let us show you how Tite-On Shingles lock together so securely that, even without nails, they don't come apart! This view shows under side of shingles.

The Presidential Picture

So far as the Republicans are concerned, the ending of the primary season finds the situation about as the forecasters expected. In pledged delegates, Eisenhower and Taft are, to all practical purposes, on an equal footing. Taft has a few more than his chief rival but the lead is too small to be significant. Neither man has anywhere near enough to assure nomination.

Only one other active candidate can now be taken seriously. That is Governor Warren, who would have a good chance in the unlikely event that Taft and Eisenhower cancel each other out. Stassen is far weaker than he was four years ago.

From the point of view of the political writer, the Democratic situation is extremely interesting. The only candidate who has shown any ability to attract a national following is Kefauver. He has amazed the old-time professionals, who were certain that his balloon would collapse ignominiously. Instead, he has had only one minor setback, in Florida, and even there he made a better showing against the popular Russell than was anticipated. If proven public sentiment meant a thing, he would be a cinch for the nomination. But the top Administration brass wants no part of him and the chances are that they'll be able to stop him at the convention—something they couldn't do in the primaries.

Potent powers within the party are behind Averill Harriman. But, politically speaking, he is a question mark. He has never run for office. He is a quiet, undramatic figure who has, so far as anyone can now see, no public following of any size. There is a very real possibility that the Democratic convention will be deadlocked, and will finally choose someone who is rarely is ever mentioned now—such as Speaker of the House Rayburn.

Many Republicans still seem to feel that it's all over but the shouting—that their man, whoever he is, is practically a cinch to defeat any available Democrat. This, of course, was felt in 1948, and the more objective political observers think that those who still hold it may be due for a painful awakening. The Democratic candidate will run on the Truman platform. The President, regardless of how badly his prestige may have slipped, will be the biggest force at the convention. All of the possible candidates have endorsed Mr. Truman's so-called "fair deal." That is true of Kefauver, who has leaned over backward to avoid criticizing the President and his program. It is true to slightly varying degrees, of Russell, Kerr, Harriman and Stevenson. The Administration is making its strongest bid yet for labor backing—as witness the President's action in the steel crisis. And it has been given the unequivocal endorsement of Philip Murray and other labor leaders.

People who want to unseat the Democrats often make the dangerous mistake of considering only the Administration's political liabilities—and disregarding its political assets. The Democratic platform of 1952 will be, so far as basic principles are concerned, much the same platform with which Mr. Truman ran to victory in 1948 when almost no one gave him a chance. From the Republican viewpoint, overconfidence could be politically suicidal.

This is one of the busiest times of the year for the farmer, if you can find any time that isn't busy for him. Hay is being cut, row crops being plowed out, and early grain fast ripening and needing cutting soon. Little boys out of school love nothing better than to ride on a hay wagon, or sit in the tractor's seat while waiting for the load to take off. Canning and freezing time has begun for the women of the family too, what with English peas all ready, strawberries ripe, and other vegetables coming in. We spent a whole afternoon gathering wild strawberries the other day; they seemed very plentiful, and make the most delicious jam. We used to make it by putting the berries out in large platters with a glass over them so the sun could cook them, but when showers come up unexpectedly, it makes the business pretty complicated, so we usually use the common method of cooking them on the stove.

There is quite an air of expectation around us at this time, for in another week we are looking for an addition to our beagle family. We were delighted the other morning to find a Cedar Waxwing nest in the process of construction. The Waxwings usually nest further north or at a higher elevation than this, and so we will watch with interest the progress of this venture. The nest is about 20 feet off the ground in a maple tree not far from a small body of water.

The Chuck-Will's-Widow that we reported hearing is still in the vicinity, and no doubt means that nesting is going on. We plan to make a try at finding the nest, for we would like to have the actual record.

We would like to quote a short piece entitled "Hats off to the Kingfisher" taken from "Fish Ponds for the Farm" by F. C. Edminster. "The relationship of predator to prey, or vice versa, is fundamental in the ecology of all living things. It is one of the most prevalent of all biological phenomena, yet it is terribly misunderstood by many people. The trouble comes from the competition, in the

By Walter Johnson

In the revolutionary period when men in what is now the United States cast out oppressive government and created our Republican form of government the people had and used some very apt expressions. Among these were "Don't tread on me" and "Resistance to tyranny is obedience to God." These expressions are to some extent, being again revived.

Certain it is that the man who accepts and submits to tyranny is lessening his own likeness to his God. Man is created in the physical image of his God but that is true of the slave as well as of the Free man. It is only the Free man who stands with head up and who is not in fear of any other man who is mentally and spiritually as well as physically in image of his God. The man who bows and scapates to another man who may be in government and abuse the power he has is not a Free man. In the presently existing situation as our federal and state bureaucrats move in on us to direct us more and more we need more and more resistance. These bureaucrats keep nibbling at us. With each nibble they close in a little tighter. It is always easier to give way to the nibble than to resist because to resist is costly to the individual.

One of our top bureaucrats in Richmond recently summarized for us just what resistance means. With respect to a certain individual who resisted encroachment upon him this top bureaucrat said "He is cutting off his nose to spite his face". That, after fashion, is true. The relation of the citizen to bureaucracy is of such nature that he does lose one way or another in material things if he does dare resist.

But morally that individual gains much when he resists. He gains to the extent that he is holding to his Freedom and he feels better about it. He is standing true to his duty to his ancestry and to his posterity. He is under an obligation to preserve the concepts created here by his ancestry and to pass those concepts on down to his posterity unimpaired. Generally our generation has not recognized and carried out that obligation. We have not been true to our trust.

As a general thing the men and women who staff bureaucracy are not bad people at heart. Instead it is the conditions under which they serve that is bad and that brings out the very worst there is in them. Appointed to their jobs in the first place they rise to important position within the particular bureau in accord with ability to play to advantage the politics of that bureau. They never get close to the people or to the burdens of the people. They stand always in a position where the citizen is inferior.

The able and wise gentlemen who met in the Virginia convention of 1776 well and truly recognized the distorted thinking that rises in bureaucracy. They proclaimed, in the Virginia Declaration of Rights, that the best way to restrain office-holders from oppression was to force them into feeling and participating the burdens of the people through frequent and certain elections.

Those men of 1776 well knew what they were talking about. They were speaking the wisdom of the ages. They knew that nothing is as certain to straighten out distorted thinking of an officeholder as going among and listening to the people in a campaign for reelection.

We have, in recent years, cast out and disregarded the wisdom of the Founding Fathers. In our federal state and county governments we have created many millions of jobs to be filled by appointment instead of by election. In that way office-holders have largely gotten out from under control by the people and instead are exercising control over the people. This control is becoming more and more oppressive and straight with tyranny.

As individuals it is so much easier to appease bureaucracy than to resist and oppose it but we are not being true to ourselves or to our trust or to our God by appeasing the propensities of bureaucracy. When we resist we not only help ourselves but we also help bureaucracy by encouraging it to stay within the bounds of reason.

HELPFUL HINTS IN THE KITCHEN

To change the flavor of your apple pie try using brown sugar instead of white sugar.

Do you like onions? Beat a tablespoon of onion juice with your mashed potatoes. Makes you want more.

A nice change for sausage is accomplished by adding a dash of ginger in the sausage meat before making it into patties.

Almost any herb will give added flavor to macaroni or spaghetti.

Mix crushed cheese crackers to your next meat loaf for a flaky flavor.

Avoid washing an egg beater when the recipe calls for only one egg by shaking it in a jar or any covered container.

To make sour milk, use 1 tablespoon vinegar and 1 cup sweet milk.

Nut meats may be kept in the refrigerator in covered containers to keep the oils from becoming rancid.

Coffee when refrigerated retains its flavor and freshness much longer.

When storing meat in the refrigerator remove all light store wrappings as they encourage the accumulation of moisture for bacterial growth. If meat must be wrapped, use wax or cellophane paper.

Brown sugar which has become hard may be softened for use by placing it in a pyrex dish and covering with a clean damp cloth. Then run into a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 10 minutes or until soft enough to measure easily.

Hot cream filling placed on a pie shell often causes water so often seen between the filling and the meringue. Try cooling the filling first.

To avoid crying when peeling and slicing onions try holding a match in your mouth.

Toothpicks will absorb moisture in salt shakers.

Chocolate may be melted on a double thickness of wax paper on the lowest heat of your electric range thus avoiding an extra dish to be washed.

To clean your electric oven place 1 cup of ammonia in the oven overnight. Next morning wash with clean cloth.

A very nice salad dressing may be made from mayonnaise, chopped olives and enough catsup to give desired color.

To test watermelon for ripeness, thump watermelon with thumb and forefinger then do same to toe of shoes. If the sound is alike—we'll bet it's a good watermelon.

To loosen coconut from shell drain milk from holes then place coconut in moderate oven (350 degrees) or while baking cake. After ten or fifteen minutes, remove from oven and meat will fall away from shell.

For garnishing salads, frosted grape clusters are a delight. Merely dip grapes in egg whites, then in granulated sugar.

Kidd Transferred

Airman Third Class Edward B. Kidd son of Mrs. Louise Kidd, 60 East Pultney Street, New York, formally of Scottsville, has been transferred to Shepherd Air Base, Texas, for further training, it was announced Friday.

He had been at Sampson Air Force Base for basic training since his recent enlistment in the service. Prior to enlisting he was employed at Corning Glass Works, in New York.

Maness Replaces Wagner At Fork Union Academy

A veteran of ten months service with the First Cavalry Division in Korea has been assigned to the reserve officers training corps unit at Fork Union Military Academy.

Major Harold M. Maness, of Biscoe, N. C., was awarded five campaign stars for action with the Eighth Cavalry Regiment, including the defense of Taegu, the crossing of the 38th Parallel and the capture of Pyongyang.

He is a graduate of Oak Ridge Military Academy, in North Carolina, and attended Clemson College in South Carolina entering the Army in 1943.

While with the Third Army in France and Germany in World War II, Major Maness was awarded five campaign stars, the Silver Star and the Bronze Star with two Oak Leaf clusters. He was released from active duty in 1946 but rejoined the service in 1948 and went to Korea in July, 1950.

A professor of military science and tactics at Fork Union, Major Maness replaces Colonel S. E. Wagner, who was transferred. He reported May 22. He is married and has three children. He came to Fork Union from the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga.

DECLARATION CONTEST

Betty Jane Gibson, Barbara Hayes and Julian Graves, all of Charlottesville, made off with top honors in the stewardship declaration contest at the Bethel Baptist Church in Fluvanna County Tuesday.

The contest is an annual event sponsored by the Virginia Baptist Woman's Missionary Union for the Albemarle Baptist Association.

Miss Gibson, from the University Baptist Church, in Charlottesville represented the girl's auxiliary and spoke on "Stewardship of Influence in My Home." Miss Hayes, from the same church, was adjudged the best of those representing the Y.W.A. in a speech on, "As A Christian I am Responsible."

The third Winner, Julian Graves, of the First Baptist Church, in Charlottesville, represented the Royal Ambassadors and spoke on "Stewardship of Influence in My Family." The three winners will represent the 26 churches comprising the Albemarle Association in statewide competition at Virginia Beach in June.

Last year's State declaration contest winner, Hoy Hughes, Royal Ambassador from the University

Baptist Church, in Charlottesville also spoke at the contest at the church of Carysbrook, in Fluvanna County. His subject was summer camps. He will compete in the nation-wide contest this July.

pond food chain, between man as a fisherman and the fish-eating birds and mammals. Thus we hear a sportsman condemn the kingfisher or the heron for eating the fish he would like to catch. Thereby, he believes, the birds spoil his own fishing.

As a matter of fact, these competing predators perform a great and necessary service. Whereas man is very selective as a fisherman, taking only certain species that he wants, the others take the easiest fish to catch. The fish predators help to prevent over-abundance and consequent reduction of growth. This is as it should be since this whole natural process evolved to keep animals and plants in balance and prevent them from destroying themselves. Next time the kingfisher rattles his way to your pond, take your hat off to him. He will help make better fishing for you."

Mrs. George L. (Henrietta) became 99 years of age on Sunday May 29. She was the honor guest at a birthday picnic at the family home place, now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Parrish, with whom she resides. Between 75 and 100 relatives and friends gathered for this occasion. The picnic table on the lawn was laden with a variety of delicious food. After thanks were returned and blessings asked upon the honoree, by E. P. Brown, everyone present partook of the delicious food. Both young and old had a most enjoyable time. Mrs. Parrish was able to remain amid the group and bid each departing relatives and friend adieu, and to express to them her expectations of seeing them again in 1953, when she will turn the century mark.

As she travels down her pathway of long life may she find Joy, Peace and Contentment and continue to realize that "Life can be Beautiful", at any age.
