The Scottsville Story

Chapter VI
By Bob Spencer

In more recent years several modern industries have become a part of our community and as a result of them the population of this town has just about doubled since 1944. Although these new industries are not as great in number as the "old time industries", they are larger and play a definite role in our community.

Today, one of the nine textile plants of the United States Rubber Company is located at Scottsville. At the period during World War II when the demand for rayon cord for use in military tires was greatest, the United States government called upon the U. S. Rubber Company to increase its rayon cord productions. In order to supply this need it was found that it would be necessary to establish another factory. The selection of Scottsville as the site for this new factory was due largely to the efforts of business men, the Lions Club and the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway who pointed out such assets as good, conscientious people to work in such a plant, adequate shipping facilities, good location, fine climate and most of all community interest.

Construction of the plant began in April of 1944 and until 1946 it was operated by U. S. Rubber as a defense plant. At this time it was purchased by the company from the government.

Since opening, the Scottsville plant has operated successfully on a three-shift basis. The large, one-story brick building which lies just outside the city limits, is windowless except in the office and cafe.

REMODELED EXTERIOR of Omohundro Hardware Company shows George T. Omohundro, Jr., general manager, standing at entrance.

Public Invited To Omohundro Remodeling Opening

The public has been invited to see the results of more than a year's work on remodeling the premises of Omohundro Hardware Company in Scottsville next Friday and Saturday.

Both the exterior and interior of the store have been changed in line with the Omohundros' policy of keeping pace with the times.

George T. Omohundro, Jr. has been in the hardware business at this same location since May of 1926 when he and R. C. Kent bought the Sclater Hardware Company, which opened in the building in 1913. The business operated under the name of Sclater Hardware Company until 1932 when George T. Omohundro, Sr. purchased the interest of R. C. Kent. The name was then changed to Omohundro Hardware Company and it has been operated since that time by father and son.

The first major change in the store was made in 1929 when the old showcases and wall shelving were removed and replaced with new open-type shopping islands and ledge type wall displays that extended up only seven feet so that all merchandise was in easy view and reach of the shopper.

In April of 1952 the Omohundros started to expand and remodel the entire store and warehouse facilities. This included removing a partition wall, taking into the sale floor the entire first floor of the four-story building which houses the main part of the store with the Travelers Rest Hotel occupying the three floors above. Removing the wall more than doubles the space in the sales room, which is brightly lighted with three rows of continuous slim-line lights mounted in ceiling.

The office has been moved to a rear corner of the store and elevated three feet above the sale floor, giving an open view of the entire store.

A new two-story warehouse section was added to the rear of the sales room, so that now the store and warehouse extend through the entire block.

Other improvements include an enlarged heating system and ventilating system.

New lines of merchandise added recently include chinaware, common crystal, gifts, plumbing fixtures and Westinghouse electrical Appliances.

Personnel in the store consists of two Scottsville residents, W. J. Goodwin, who came with the firm in 1936, and Edward Dorier, who joined it in 1942.

Mrs. Omohundro, Jr. as served as bookkeeper since the beginning of the business.

George Omohundro, Jr. general manager, has always had a keen interest in Hardware Association activities. He served on the board of directors of the Virginia Hardware Association from 1935 to 1939, when he became secretary-treasurer of the organization, which position he now holds.

Appalachian Electric Power Co. Salads are a delight in a summer meal. They are tasty as well as being most appealing to the eye. Yet salads are like most everything else that is appealing to the eye—they have to be dressed up ... and in this case with salad dressings.

Salad dressings can be made more interesting if made at home. They could become a specialty of yours with many favorable compliments from friends.

Miss Mary Thompson from the Extension Department of Virginia Polytechnic Institute has given us some very interesting dressings I would like to pass on to you.

Cream Dressing

- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup cream or evaporated milk
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 1/4 teaspoon mustard

Mix together and serve on vegetable salad.

Quick Mayonnaise

- 1 egg
- 1 cup oil
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- 3/4 cup water
- 4 tablespoons cornstarch

Seasonings
Combine oil and egg. Cook vinegar, water, cornstarch and seasonings together. When cooked mixture is thick and transparent, add (while hot) to oil and egg. This never separates and is especially good when you want to store mayonnaise for a long period.

Fruit Salad Dressing

Add 1/4 cup whipped cream to 1 cup mayonnaise or boiled dressing.

California Salad Dressing

- 2 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 cups whipped cream or powdered milk

Beat egg yolks, add lemon juice and sugar and cook in double boiler until thick. Cool. Fold in 2 cups whipped cream or powdered milk just before serving. The cooked mixture may be kept a week in the refrigerator, but do not add whipped cream or milk until ready to serve.

Lemon Carrot Dressing

Grind 4 carrots and 1 lemon with a fine blade and add 1/2 cup sugar and let stand several hours in the refrigerator. Use on canned pears and peach salad. Serve on lettuce with French dressing or congeal in lemon gelatin.

French Dressing

There are many variations of French Dressing, but the basic is usually:

- 3/4 cup oil
- 1/4 cup vinegar or lemon juice
- 1/4 cup mustard
- Salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon sugar

These proportions and the seasoning may be varied. To keep French dressing, place it in a tightly closed jar. Shake the jar well before using the dressing. A clove of garlic, peeled, may be placed in a quart of vinegar for six or seven days. The clove is then removed and the delicately flavored vinegar is used for dressings.

Tomato French Dressing

- 2 tablespoons sugar

This demonstration showed me the way to a better deal!

I'd been planning to buy a higher-priced car until I found out all Chevrolet offered—and how much I could save!

You get more power on less gas

That's because Chevrolet's two great valve-in-head engines are high-compression engines. In Powerglide* models, you get the most powerful engine in Chevrolet's field—the new 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame." Gearshift models offer the advanced 108-h.p. "Thrift-King" engine.

And it's the lowest-priced line

A demonstration will show you that Chevrolet offers just about everything you could want. Yet it's the lowest-priced line in the low-price field.

*Combination of Powerglide automatic transmission and 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame" engine optional on "Two-Ten" and Bel Air models at extra cost.

You're "sitting pretty" behind the wheel

Take this Bel Air model. First thing you'll notice is the quality of the interior. Rich-looking appointments. Roomy seats with foam rubber cushions. Turn the key to start the engine and you're ready to go.

You can see all around

You look out and down through a wide, curved, one-piece windshield. The panoramic rear window and big side windows provide a clear view in all directions.

Bigger brakes for smoother, easier stops

An easy nudge on the pedal brings smooth, positive response—right now! Chevrolet's improved brakes are the largest in the w-price field.

It's heavier for better stability

You're in for a pleasant surprise—the smooth, steady, big-car ride of this new Chevrolet. The reason is that, model for model, Chevrolet will weigh up to 10 pounds more than the other low-priced cars.

You get greater getaway with the new Powerglide*

A lot finer performance on a lot less gas. That's what you get with the new Powerglide automatic transmission. There's no more advanced automatic transmission at any price.

Let us demonstrate all the advantages of buying a Chevrolet now!

MORE PEOPLE BUY CHEVROLETS THAN ANY OTHER CAR!

County Farm Notes

By P. H. France
Emergency Measures Proposed To Help Beat Drought

Emergency measures for farmers in drought-stricken areas of the State have been proposed by Dr. H. L. Dunton, head of the agronomy department at VPI.

He says some farmers have been forced to feed hay or silage, and that the reduced yields and use of already stored feed may leave some areas short of feed for the winter. To guard against a feed shortage, here are some things you can do:

1. Seed sudan grass now. Given a normal growing season during the rest of July and August, it should furnish about two tons of hay per acre by early September. Varieties of sudan grass adapted to Virginia are common, sweet, and Tift. Sweet is preferred. Use fertilizer at the rate of 600 to 800 pounds of 10-10-10, 8-8-8, or 5-10-10 per acre. Disc fertilizer in to the soil. Seed at the rate of 30 to 35 pounds per acre.

Seeding may be done by grain drill, seeder, or by hand on a well-prepared seed bed. Sudan grass does well on a well-drained soil and is adapted to the entire state.

Do not let livestock graze sudan grass until it's at least 18 inches high. Keep livestock from eating frosted sudan since prussic acid poisoning is likely.

2. A mixture of 2 to 3 bushels of small grains with 15 pounds of rye grass and 15 pounds of crimson clover is popular, and is best adapted to Eastern Virginia. (This is good for Fluvanna county)

3. A mixture of 3 to 4 bushels of small grains also is suggested. If you are really short of pasture you may want to seed two fields, one to graze in late fall and early winter, and one in late winter and early spring.

4. On pastures that are grazed close and where the grass is short, an application of 30 to 50 pounds of nitrogen per acre applied now will mean an added boost to growth when rains do come.

More immediately farmers must use what they have now. If you have hay crops which have not been cut, graze them and save the hay which is already in the mow. Begin grazing alfalfa just before or about the time it is ready to cut for hay, and put on enough cattle, if possible, to graze it down in 10 days or two weeks.

Some farmers put up grass silage this spring. It may be desirable to feed that now and try to refill in the fall with corn silage. If cattle are on ladino-grass or ladino-fescue pastures which have been grazed to the ground, take them off and start feeding hay if you have no other choice. Continued grazing will injure the stand and you'll have poorer pastures later.

If it is so dry that you believe your corn isn't going to produce, you might cut and feed it green, or cut and put it in the silo now. However, this is a last resort.

Dr. Dunton says the drought will point up the fact that on livestock farms one of the essential things for success is a good feed program, one which helps to provide adequate feed for dry periods.

Seed Alfalfa Right In Fall

Want a lush stand of fall-seeded alfalfa?

Then you'll be interested in this advice from W. W. Lewis, agronomist at VPI.

He says to choose a deep, well-drained soil. Avoid soils that are subject to overflow and those that are likely to remain wet late in the spring or after rains. Well-drained, first-bottom soils are not generally suited to alfalfa. You can usually get better and longer-lasting stands on second bottoms and upland where drainage is good.

Have the soil tested. Lime for a pH of 6.5. Use 1,000 to 1,200 pounds of borated 2-12-12 or equivalent per acre. Plow under half the fertilizer with half of the lime, then apply the remaining halves just before seeding. If the soil is low in phosphorous, potash or both, apply additional fertilizer.

The ideal seedbed is firm and compact so that it provides plenty of moisture. There should be enough fine granular soil to cover the seeds. For late summer and fall seedlings, prepare the seedbed 30 to 60 days before seeding and disc frequently to destroy weeds.

Sow 15 to 25 pounds per acre of certified Williamsburg, certified Atlantic, certified Buffalo, Kansas Common, or Oklahoma approved seed. Use Grimm seed only on exposed locations and in altitudes above 2,500 feet. When bacterial wilt is present use Buffalo.

Generally, seeding alfalfa with a grass gives higher yields of forage over a longer period of time. If you use a mixture, seed 10 to 15 pounds of alfalfa and 3 to 5 pounds of orchard grass. The orchard grass will grow in the spots where the alfalfa won't grow. Grass will come back with alfalfa after each cutting.

Always inoculate the seed with a good commercial alfalfa culture.

Failure of seeds which have been properly inoculated is commonly caused by excessive drying of the culture after it has been applied to the seeds. The culture may become too dry if the seeds are exposed to sunlight or air before they are seeded or if the soil in which they are seeded is extremely dry. Check expiration date on the inoculation box.

Seed without a companion crop 30 to 60 days before the average date of the first killing frost in the fall. On soils in the limestone area or on other heavy soils, the depth of seeding should be about 1/4 inch but never more than 1/2 inch. Roll with a corrugated roller before and after seeding.

Bureau of Animal Industry Needs Twin Calves For Tests

Identical twin calves of any beef or dual-purpose breed are needed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Animal Industry to continue calf-feeding studies started in 1950.

Offers from breeders to sell their twin calves have been very limited this year, the Bureau reports, and as a result the feeding studies at the Beltsville, Maryland, Research Center may be seriously handicapped.

Breeders within 300 miles of Washington, D. C., who have identical twin calves which they are willing to sell are requested to write Dr. C. F. Winchester, Bureau of Animal Industry, Beltsville, Maryland. Twins five months old or younger are wanted, and they may be Herefords, Shorthorns, Aberdeen Angus, or any cross of these or other beef breeds. Identical twins sired by a beef bull and from a dairy cow may also be accepted for experimental use.

Results during the first four years of the feeding studies with twin calves showed that those given only enough feed for six months to keep them from losing weight, grew rapidly and economically when they were later placed on adequate rations. The retarded calves needed no more total feed to reach a certain weight than was eaten by their co-twins even though the former calves reached the desired weight two to three months later.

Meat of the retarded calves was as good as that from the well-fed co-twins fed as controls. Calves fed on limited calorie rations received adequate allowances of protein, minerals, and vitamin A. It is hoped that future feeding studies may lead to further information concerning protein requirements of calves on limited rations.

Identical twin calves develop from the same egg cell and are alike in every respect, including sex.

SERVING THE PEOPLE OF THE TOWN OF SCOTTSVILLE AND THE NEIGHBORING COMMUNITIES IN ALBEMARLE, FLUVANNA AND BUCKINGHAM COUNTIES

No "Federal Bail-Out"

Not so very long ago, a great many people were frankly envious of the cattle producer. Prices were high, sales were good, and to the amateur eye it looked as if the cattlemen were making money hand over fist and would continue to do so in the future.

Few would be envious of the farmers who depend on cattle today. The cost of producing cattle for market remains high—but the value of the animals has declined sharply.

There are two primary reasons for this. One is that the cattle population touched an all-time high some months ago, and it is an axiom that when any commodity is in abundant supply, the price generally tends downward—just as when there is scarcity the price generally tends upward.

Yet, as Edmund Christopherson writes in the Saturday Evening Post, "Not one of the more than a hundred range cattlemen's organizations favors a federal bail-out." They think that the best way to solve their problems is through their own efforts.

Country Lawyer

By Walter Johnson

After three years of hard and bitter fighting the police action in Korea on the other side of the world has finally been brought to a stop. It cost us more than 28,000 in lives of our young men and more than 100,000 were wounded in battle.

It was an unhappy and costly war. It has been a war we could not win by the methods and measure of force used and one that we could not afford to lose.

In many ways we fought this war yet did not fight it. In the first stages of the war our forces were hopelessly out-numbered and were in constant retreat with heavy losses to our side.

We were taken by surprise when the masses of Chinese swarmed across the Yalu in attack upon our comparatively small forces. Our men were forced into ignoble retreat and as they moved back over the icy mountain roads, and passes they were subject to constant attack.

When the Chinese attacked our forces a new war developed. We were fighting China in fact, but we fought under a fiction in the sense that we were fighting Chinese but not China.

Now we have an armistice in the sense that shooting has stopped. But none of us know what this actually means or how long the gun will remain silenced.

paratively few in number. Except for the Chinese the South Korean people could easily subdue the North Korean communists and reunite their country.

Thus we have an armistice and a cease-fire situation in Korea which is not peace in true sense. It is more in the nature of a powder keg and which might well blow up at any time.

Mess-cleaning in the State Department has amounted only to minor stirring of the mess and to brushing a small part of it under the rug.

The war as a whole, has been kept much too far from the people. There have been too many "military secrets" and too few honest undoctored reports to the people.

On the whole we should look for and hope for the best but should not overlook the gloomy possibilities that also exist.

Farmers Have Stake

In Wheat Vote Results

With the referendum on 1954 wheat marketing quotas coming up next Friday, G. D. Farrar, PMA county chairman, urged every eligible wheat grower to vote because the outcome of the referendum will materially affect the price all farmers receive for their 1954 crop.

Mr. Farrar said that individual price support level, if quotas are turned down, will be cut almost half, and further more will be available only to farmers who comply with their acreage allotments.

Mr. Sandidge said that individual farm acreage allotments were mailed from the county office on August 5, 1953, and should now be in farmers' hands.

The voting place in Palmyra county will be the PMA Office. The voting hours are 8 a. m. to 5 p.m.

TOWERS MANNED

The Virginia Forest Service is now manning the lookout towers in Spotsylvania, Louisa and Fluvanna counties. This was brought about by exceptionally dry weather during the months of June and July and also to frequent small fires burning throughout these three counties.

The Forest Service reports that only once in the last seven years has it been necessary to man lookout towers in the summer months and if the dry weather continues, the lookout towers will be manned in the remaining counting of the Virginia Forest Service Charlottesville District.

WASHINGTON

YOUR SENATOR
A. WILLIS ROBERTSON

Constructive work of the First Session of the 83rd Congress was limited by two things: (1) The Republicans took over in the House and Senate and spent considerable time organizing committees and selecting new staffs. (2) The work of the appropriations Committees was delayed while the Eisenhower Administration revised the Truman budget.

The net result was that for the first three months of the session little was done except to lay the groundwork for the remainder of the session. The remaining months were strenuous, especially in the matter of committee work. More than 6,600 bills were introduced in the House and more than 2,500 in Senate and, in my opinion, the best thing the Congress did was to kill many ill advised proposals.

Major accomplishments of the session were passage of the necessary appropriations bills and action to permit the President to carry out his foreign policy. In both of these fields support for the President cut across party lines.

Last year, under Democratic leadership, President Truman's budget was cut 10 percent. This year Democrats cooperated with the Republican leadership not only in approving the reductions of $8.5 billion which President Eisenhower recommended but also in reducing appropriations another $4.4 billion below President Eisenhower's proposals.

These cuts still were not sufficient to produce a balanced budget and there will be a deficit at the end of the current fiscal year of somewhere between six and ten billion dollars, depending upon whether tax collections fall below present levels. But the reductions in spending represented a real accomplishment because of the limitation placed on the Congress by legal and moral commitments made in the past. We could eliminate nonessential items and reduce some others but the Federal Government has been making commitments of financial assistance on a vast scale for many years and a top-heavy bureaucracy is like the omelet which Napoleon said could not be unscrambled.

On questions of foreign policy the Republican Party is badly divided. Many Republicans favor a high tariff policy and held out stubbornly against the President's proposal, which had Democratic support, to extend the reciprocal trade program. Many members of the President's party also opposed his program of Mutual Assistance, which is nothing more than a continuation of the Marshall plan with emphasis on military instead of economic assistance. But here again bi-partisan support provided an authorization and an appropriation which should be adequate to carry on the program for the next year.

There is general agreement that we cannot continue to furnish foreign aid in future years on this scale but our hope is that by next year the threat to world peace will have been reduced to the point where we will be justified in making substantial cuts in the military establishment, in foreign aid and in domestic spending. Our goal will be a balanced budget for the next fiscal year with spending not to exceed $60 billion.

With the adjournment of the Congress I am suspending this weekly column. If it has helped readers of Virginia weekly papers to have a little better understanding of what has been going on in Washington, I feel it has justified the effort required to produce it.

One billion tons of manure, the animal product of livestock on U. S. farms, if completely recovered, carefully preserved, and efficiently used, could increase the value of crop production by $6,000,000,000. Are you properly handling the manure produced on your farm?

Ramblings

Last week I remarked that I had gotten out of touch with the many weeks with titles that are always being proclaimed by somebody or other, when in the mail came a news release about this week. This one is called National Vegetable Week. A girl named Janet Wilkins is Queen of National Vegetable Week, and she went all the way to Fairport, N. Y. to inspect an open-end vegetable can put out by the American Can Company. (The article did not say where she comes from.) Last year Virginia farmers produced vegetable crops for processors valued at $4,031,000. It is to be hoped that the drought will not cut down this considerable income.

The rain Saturday and Sunday was just a taste of what everyone has been hoping for. Suddenly, we were mopping instead of moping.

Of course it rained during the hour we were out to dinner, and another hour was spent on our return baling out various items near the windows we had left open to the evening air. The African violets on and near the window sill got as good a soaking as the marigolds and zinnias outside.

A variation on a theme was heard in Sunday School the other day when the class was memorizing a series of familiar Bible quotations. Every Sunday the teacher would rehearse the class. They would read the first line of a verse and then call upon one of the children to finish it. The teacher call on John, "It's your turn now. What is the rest of this verse: 'Cast your bread upon the waters...?'"

"It will always come back but-tered," said John. What with the heat And the drought And vacations

And everything quiet, From the insects on up, There is also a Dearth of material For this column. Anybody got any ideas? Here's the first one that came out of my pigeon-hole where I keep such things:

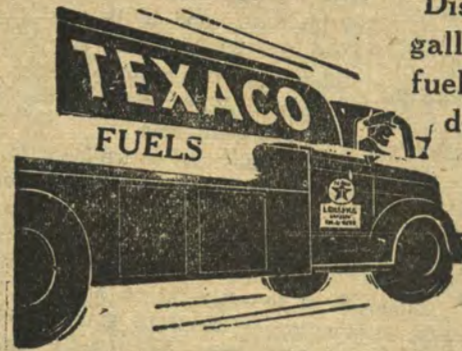

A doctor, after examining a patient, said to the patient's wife, "I don't like the looks of your husband," Wife: "I don't either, Doctor, but he's so kind to the children." E. F. W.

Parking's a pushover with Ford Power-Steering

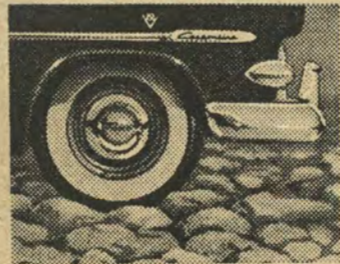

It's a brand new Ford "Worth More" feature—and it costs less than any other power steering in its field!

With one finger, while the car is standing still, a woman can turn the steering wheel. No longer will rough road ruts "throw you". Should ever a tire blow out, power steering assistance helps you to keep safe straight-line control. Ford Power Steering does up to 75% of the work; and it has a more natural "feel" than many others. You don't have to change your driving habits radically. The steering gear ratio is the same as without power steering and the hydraulic system gives you just the right assistance when you need it.

No change in driving habits! You could drive off in a Ford with Power Steering with absolutely no radical change in the way you ordinarily drive a car... just a lot less effort!

"Wheel Shock" reduced! With a hydraulic "cushion" between your steering wheel and the front wheels, Ford Power Steering noticeably reduces "wheel shock" on rough roads.

Parking is a pushover with Ford Power Steering. In fact, all driving is a lot easier and so much more relaxing. You can easily turn the wheel with one finger while the car is standing still.

You're safer! Even if a front tire should blow out, Ford Power Steering comes to your assistance... gives you the "muscle" to keep the car under control. That's really extra security!
