62 Pints Of Blood Given By Donors In This Area

The Red Cross Bloodmobile visited Scottsville last Thursday and 62 pints of blood were collected from blood donors in the community. The Bloodmobile made its headquarters at the Scottsville Methodist Church and 70 donors applied during the one day visit to give blood.

The number of pints of blood collected last Thursday fell slightly short of the amount collected on the two previous visits of the Bloodmobile to Scottsville.

The Scottsville Lions Club sponsored the visit of the Bloodmobile to Scottsville. Lion Tom Allison assisted by Lions Tom Gillis, J. H. Phillips, and W. A. McDearmon headed a committee from the Lions who were in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. John Williamson was in charge of 10 volunteer workers from Scottsville who assisted at the Bloodmobile during the day. The workers included Mrs. Jack Miller, Mrs. G. B. Cleveland, Mrs. Buel Carden, Mrs. Albert Bates, Mrs. Lawrence Proffitt, Mrs. Roy Hamner, Mrs. Cosby Patterson, Miss Christine Catlett and typists Miss Elsie Staton and Bobby Spencer.

Mrs. Campbell Holt was in charge of the committee from the Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service who served lunch to the Bloodmobile Staff and nurses aides.

Bloodmobile Visit Scheduled July 9

Mrs. H. M. Bransford, chairman of the Red Cross Bloodmobile work in Fluvanna County, has announced the next blood collection will be July 9 at Fluvanna Lake Dance Hall. Mrs. Bransford held a meeting at her home, June 1, of all committee chairmen to start preparations for recruiting donors and acquainting workers with the necessary procedures.

The committee chairmen for the coming visit of the Bloodmobile are:

Recruiting—Mrs. Asa Brown for the county, with Mrs. R. L. Collins, Cunningham District; Mrs. George Smith, Palmyra District; Mrs. William Seigfried, Columbia District; Capt. J. W. Pendegras, Fork Union and Carl Haynes, Colored Recruiting for the county.

Canteen—Mrs. G. H. Jones
Nurses—Mrs. J. H. Yeatman
Registration—Mrs. F. A. Crockett

Medical Consultant—Dr. J. H. Yeatman.

Mrs. J. P. Snead, Fluvanna Red Cross Chairman, attended the meeting and made several helpful suggestions. Mrs. Snead had just returned from the regional meeting of the Red Cross in Roanoke. Mrs. Snead stressed that the need for blood is increasing, not only for the Armed Forces but also for the residents of the county and for the manufacture of Gamma Globulin to combat Polio this summer.

All pledge cards must be returned by June 25, in order to make out appointments. Mrs. Crockett is confident that if pledge cards are returned promptly there will be very little loss of time for donors on the day of the Bloodmobile visit.

"Peachie" Killed By Car

Peachie, well known and beloved hot dog, she went straight for home before unwrapping it and having dinner.

Peachie had made her home with the Daniels for over 15 years. When a tiny puppy she belonged to a neighbor of the Daniels, John Henry Phillips. But she seemed to become more attached to the Daniels than the Phillipses, so Mr. Phillips gave her to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel.

She was in failing health and in recent months could not hear or see the cars that steadily passed by her home on Harrison street. She was trotting slowly toward home when a car hit her last Saturday and she died instantly from the injury.

Ramblings

Last Day of School rates with most kids with their birthday and Christmas, but usually First Day Out of School leaves them wondering what to do with themselves and pestering anybody who is around to take them somewhere in the car. This is a time when it is good to live in the country. Boys can be set to doing chores that are not too distasteful, and after a little work in the garden, there's usually a creek around to swim and fish in, without involving a long trip in a car or membership in club.

If all the advice-to-the-lovelorn columns were stopped newspapers say circulation would decrease. It is probable that the problems and answers dished out help publishers more than they do the letter-writers. It beats all how much people enjoy reading about other people's troubles.

"The man who graduates today and stops learning tomorrow is uneducated the day after," says Newton D. Baker.

We saw several examples of the struggle for existence that goes on in the world of small creatures today. Over the week-end we have caught three mice, which the children obligingly released from the traps because I didn't like to do it. As annoying as they are, when I suddenly see one in a corner of a room, and it stares at me with bright eyes, whiskers twitching, and light shining on its grey fur, I can't possibly feel murderous toward him. The boys felt bad when I detached the beginnings of a wasp's nest from the inside of a window screen. The mother wasp was working at it, and as it fell, several curious moist cocoons fell on the sill. Even though we've all been stung, they were very sorry for the mother at having to lose her babies. The worst blow was a few hours later when a malicious crow flew into a robin's nest in our oak tree and flew out with first one baby robin and then another, while the mother flew at the marauder, but with no success. She later sat on the telephone wire peeping pitifully.

We have never seen so many butterflies around the place. They perch on weed stalks and blades of the unmown grass in the field like bright flowers. While watching a flock of them (or is it a school or a covey?) we discovered a young gray fox asleep in the sun, curled up in the grass. He jumped high and ran swiftly at the sound of our voices. He will have to find another hiding place when the grass is cut this week. We like to keep down the weeds, but it is a shame to sacrifice all the bright pink clover and the field daisies.

EFFORT TO ENCOURAGE PRIVATE BANK LENDING

In 1932, when many large as well as small business concerns were facing failure because the great depression had made it impossible for them to obtain operating funds, the federal government established the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to help worthy borrowers.

The R. F. C. was acutely needed at that time and has served a useful purpose over the years but it has been subject to criticism because so large a proportion of its loans were concentrated in the hands of a few companies and because there was evidence that loans sometimes were based on political influence rather than the merits of the case.

In addition to this criticism there is an increasing feeling that the government should not compete with private lending agencies and, as a result, our Banking and Currency Committee has been holding hearings on a bill of which Senator Byrd and I are joint sponsors to abolish the R.F.C.

One objection offered to this bill has been that some worthy small businessmen are unable to obtain loans they need and deserve because funds are not available from their local bankers and they are not well enough known to borrow outside of their own communities. To meet this criticism I introduced in the Senate last week a bill which will encourage bankers to make such loans.

My bill would allow the Federal Reserve Banks—which really are bankers' banks—to guarantee payment of up to 90 percent of certain specified types of loans or to buy these loans from the local banks. This second provision means that if a banker would like to lend a business concern which needs money for up to ten years but might hesitate, fearing he would need the money to pay his depositors before that time, he can be assured of getting the money back promptly at any time by selling his loan to the Federal Reserve Bank.

To prevent abuse of this privilege my bill provides that such loans must have a maturity of not more than ten years, be so sound that they are reasonably sure to be repaid, made to a business enterprise which could not get the money from other usual sources and must be for types of business which are necessary for our military defense or for essential civilian requirements. No single borrower could obtain more than $100,000 under this plan.

This means that worthy loans to small business could be made by local bankers (who would be reasonably cautious since they could lose 10 percent or more on the deal) without any government agency entering into the original transaction. But the banker will have the encouragement of sharing the risk with a large number of other bankers who participate in the plan through the Federal Reserve Banks and will know that his money is not "frozen" for a long period if he needs it.

This method of financing small business would be without expense to the federal government whereas the R.F.C. is now operating at a loss.

Farmers May Apply For New Wheat Acreage

Farmers who have had no wheat for grain within the past three years and who plan to seed some for harvest in 1954, may apply to the Production and Marketing Administration for "new farm" wheat acreage allotments. P. A. Lewis, PMA State Chairman, has announced.

He explained that new farms, for allotment purposes, are those on which wheat was not seeded for harvest as grain in any one of the years 1951, 1952, and 1953. With the strong probability of acreage controls in effect on the 1954 wheat crop, the one to be seeded this fall, Lewis said that PMA needs certain farm data on such farms in order to establish fair allotments.

Farmers who want to be considered for a 1954 new farm allotment must file a written application with PMA not later than June 30, 1953. Application forms should be obtained and filed with the PMA county office in the county in which the land to be seeded is located.

New L-Shaped Fence Staple Developed at VPI Labs

A new L-shaped, threaded-shank fence staple which increases its holding power month by month in the wood, has been tested and improved at VPI's Wood Research Laboratory.

The new staple is being hailed as a boon to farmers who for years have used the common U-shaped fence staple which loses its holding power after being driven into the post, and which eventually drops out.

E. George Stern, wood researcher at VPI, says that now more and more farmers and cattle raisers use pressure-treated, creosote-impregnated fence posts with an anticipated life of 25 to 35 years, and holding power is of great importance. Since creosote is a lubricant, the U-shaped staple has even less holding power in the treated posts than it did in the short-lived pine posts. The L-shaped, threaded-shank staple is effective for the lifetime of the wire which it fastens to the treated post.

No longer do you have to hold both wire and staple with one hand while you drive the staple into the post. With a hammer, you drive the long leg of the L-shaped staple part of the way into the post. Then you put the wire across the long staple leg. The staple head holds the wire. With a few additional hammer blows, you drive both long and short legs into the post.

The L-shaped staple costs more per pound than the U-shaped staple. However, since the L-shaped staple weighs less, there are more L-shaped staples per pound. The small actual difference in cost is more than offset by the labor saved and by the better performance of the new staple.

Bulletin No. 11 of VPI's Wood Research Laboratory confirms the experience in the field: during six weeks of identical exposure the U-shaped staple lost 50 percent of its holding power; the L-shaped staple maintained, or even gained, 25 percent of its holding power.

Don't Grow Too Many Replacement Pullets

Falling prices for egg producers may, be in the offing next year if there are many more pullets raised than in 1953.

Poultry specialists at VPI said a committee meeting recently in Washington at the invitation of the U.S. Department of Agriculture recommended only a small increase, probably 3 to 4 percent, in the number of potential layers in January 1954, as compared with this past January.

If the increase is much greater than this, egg producers may suffer.

The committee stated figures to show that over the past years, a good egg price in relation to the cost of laying mash in the first 4 or 5 months of the year resulted in a heavy increase in the number of layers the following year. Indications are that unless egg producers are acquainted with the facts, there is danger of considerable over supply of eggs next spring.

The committee also recommended that the Department of Agriculture not support egg prices nor buy surplus eggs next year.

Damage From European Corn Borer Mounts

The European corn borer, a troublesome insect now known to be in 69 Virginia counties continues to spread.

Entomologists at VPI say possibly the borer exists in some of the other counties, but no systematic study has been made to determine its exact range.

Damage amounted to over $482,000 in eight counties surveyed last year. Heaviest losses were in Rockingham, Augusta, Clarke, and Shenandoah in the Valley, and Smyth and Washington in the Southwest.

Counties from which no reports have been made of the borer include three in the southwest, three along the central part of the West Virginia line, and 25 in central and southside Virginia.

Most of the loss caused by the corn borer, where infestation is moderate, is the result of the breakage of stalks and dropping of ears, rather than actual reduction in yield. This breakage and dropping causes spoilage and waste, and increases the cost of harvesting because it is necessary to pick up behind the harvesting machinery.

Corn borer damage usually reaches a peak 6 to 8 years after the insect appears in an area, and then declines to a somewhat lower level. The damage peak usually will be reached more quickly in a heavy corn production area than in areas where fields are small and far apart.

Spaying for control ordinarily has not been justified in Virginia, although there are exemptions. Only the largest farmers, or those who want to do custom spraying, find it economical to buy the high-cost spraying equipment.

Entomologists recommend these measures for reducing corn borer injury: use an approved adapted hybrid variety of corn; fertilize adequately; and plant corn at fruit is forming.

Other practices that will help keep the infestation low include ensiling the corn; using a corn picker with crusher rolls set to crush as much of the stalk as possible; using a husker-shredder; and plowing under all stubble and trash in the fall. However, the practices are worth little unless carried out on a community-wide basis.

Nation-wide the borer is known to be in 37 states, and last year destroyed nearly 36,000,000 bushels of corn, worth nearly $57,000,000.

Sprays Advised For Raspberry, Grape Plantings

Raspberries and grapes should be sprayed when new growth appears, to prevent destruction of the foliage by insects and diseases.

Plant pathologists at VPI say the first spray for these home fruits should be applied about one week before the blossoms open.

On grapes, the spray should be repeated immediately after blooming is over. On raspberries, repeat change in the operating hours of the spray just after harvest. Do authorized collection agencies.

New Office Hours

Beginning June 15, Appalachian Electric Power Company offices will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The offices will be closed all day Saturday.

G. R. Neubauer, District Manager of Appalachian, said the change is being made to provide employees with a five-day work week.

Mr. Neubauer said that customers can pay their accounts while the office is closed by using the collection box at the office entrance. Any bills normally due on Saturday may be paid the following Monday.

He reminded customers that for needed service, while the office is closed to call the Appalachian number listed in the telephone directory.

This policy affects only company operated offices and makes no change in the operating hours of the spray just after harvest. Do authorized collection agencies.

From Washington comes word of an alarming rise in the number of polio cases reported in the nation. The total for the week was 155, which was 54 more than the same week last year. This report follows a prediction by health authorities that the incidence of polio would undoubtedly be less than in 1952, when 57,626 cases were reported in the nation for an all-time record. This prediction was based on the known fact that polio comes in yearly cycles, for which there has been no explanation. The Washington report states that 2, 218 cases had been reported, compared to 1,768 cases in the same period last year. This seems to disprove the prediction that the 1953 epidemic will be milder than the previous year. However that may be, there is no need to become alarmed over the final outcome. Knowledge and treatment of the disease both have improved, and more hospitals are equipped to deal with any sort of epidemic in a community. It does mean, however, that due care should be taken of the health of children, and well-defined rules for avoiding polio be followed. It has been shown that proper rest and avoidance of fatigue, cleanliness, elimination of flies, proper diet, and other regulations just as simple and easy to follow will insure general health as the best known safeguard against the dread disease.

Petty Is Appointed Local Forest Warden

Chief Forest Warden W. Berkeley Morgan, Fluvanna County, announces the strengthening of his fire control organization by the appointment of Conley B. Petty, Jr., Shores, as Local Forest Warden. Mr. Petty will assist in forest fire control activities in the Fork Union District. Chief Forester Warden Morgan, in commenting on the appointment of Mr. Petty, advised that contrary to popular notions, forest wardens are not salaried employees of the State. They are public spirited men who have agreed to mobilize local man-power and fight forest fires in their community. They are paid by the State on an hourly basis only while investigating and suppressing forest fires. Mr. Petty will be given a commission by Governor Battle, which will convey the authority to hire forest fire fighters and to help enforce the State forest laws in accordance with instructions from the State Forester and Chief Forest Warden Morgan. Forest wardens have the authority to summon able bodied men for forest fire fighting. Any forest fire occurring in this vicinity should be promptly reported to Mr. Morgan or Mr. Petty.

Country Lawyer

By Walter Johnson

Last week on June 3rd we had a holiday but, strange as it may seem, most people know nothing about it unless they had occasion to go to the bank or to a liquor store or to some public institution. Even the majority of those who discovered there was a holiday did not know anything of the significance of the day. In Richmond a reporter for the Richmond Times Dispatch, Charles McDowell, Jr., made inquiry about the day from people he met on the street. Of the 27 persons to whom he directed inquiry only 8 realized and understood that it was Jefferson Davis Day and what it meant. This occurred in Richmond where Jefferson Davis dwelt for four years as President of the Confederate States of America. Though smudged as a traitor in his last years and kept for a time in a dungeon at Fort Monroe, Jefferson Davis was a great man. He served in the war with Mexico; he served as Secretary of War; and for long he represented the state of Mississippi in the United States Senate. He had the courage of his convictions and stood upon what he believed and he did not run blindly with the herd on any of the great issues of his day. One of the greatest speeches ever delivered in the United States Senate was his farewell message to the Senate as he withdrew from that body as his state of Mississippi seceded from the Union. When the Southern States withdrew from the Union and formed the new government as the Confederate States of America, Jefferson Davis was chosen President. Whereas the War Between the States has often been made to appear as a war over slavery with the South fighting to retain slavery and the North fighting to abolish it that was not the real reason. Slavery was a contributing factor. Slavery, as an institution, had existed for many thousands of years and was in existence for a long period even before the first written history. Slavery in the South had gotten to the point where it had enslaved the people of the Southern States. Most saw the wrongness of slavery and wanted to end it but the problem was a most difficult one for many reasons. All agreed upon one point in the South and that was that the problem was one directed to the people of each State and not one directed to the federal government. The South further agreed, and rightly so, that the States had entered the Union as independent nations and that they had a right to withdraw when and if they determined so to do. They did withdraw and they did establish a new and separate nation and a separate government. That meant war. It resulted in war between what had been one country but had become two nations. In that war the Southerner was denounced as a traitor who had taken up arms against his government and which was not true. The South lost the war. It was not only beaten but as a beaten nation it was subjected to a high measure of indignity. The rights and wrongs of a great question was determined on the field of battle. As we look back from where we sit today we can readily see that it was for the best that our country was not split into two nations. The strangest thing of all is that today we know so little and care so little about great decisions of history that we do not know or understand the meaning of Jefferson Davis Day. Probably the reason is that our schools are so busy teaching other things that there is no time for history. There is no time to awaken in the child a curiosity about the experiences and the mistakes of the past or the wisdom of experience as contained in the written records of man kind.

Household Hints

By Nada Mays
Home Economist

Appalachian Electric Power Co.

Modern day living calls for convenient, comfortable, economical, timesaving, and labor-saving devices in our homes. Modern living is the goal of us all and electrical appliances that are up-to-date is one of the easiest ways of achieving our goal.

The Hotpoint Company has sent to us a question and answer sheet which I think is very good; therefore, I would like to pass it on to you.

Q. How many times is the average refrigerator opened and closed each year?

A. More than 20,000 times and when you use an appliance that often, the thing you're most interested in is convenience.

Q. How many women do you think have switched to electric cooking?

A. 1,200,000 women now cook electrically and more and more are switching to electric cooking every day because of the outstanding features found only in electric ranges.

Q. How many uses are there for hot water?

A. 256—but in your home, whether you put hot water to 56 or all 256 uses, you want a dependable, safe, convenient supply of it.

Q. How much money can a family of four save in a year with a food freezer?

A. Three hundred dollars, based on a report recently released by the U. S. Department of Agriculture—proving that a food freezer pays for itself. How many are there in your family? Six? Then you can save $409.56.

Q. How many minutes does it take to wash a load of clothes in wringer-washer?

A. 30 minutes and almost every one of them is spent right at the washer—wringing, rinsing, wringing.

Q. How many clothes pins does it take to hang an average 8 lb. load of clothes?

A. 36—and every one of them means stooping, stretching, and lifting heavy clothes. When you multiply that by a year's wash, it becomes an endless amount of work.

Q. How many square inches of flatwork are there in an average shirt?

A. Actually, it's all flatwork—1,941 square inches of it—when you use an Ironer. You iron each part of the shirt—collar, cuffs, sleeves, etc.—just as you would iron a handkerchief.

Q. How many hours does the average woman spend a year doing dishes by hand?

A. 456 hours—57 eight-hour work-days of dishpan drudgery!!

Q. How much moisture can this Dehumidifier take out of the air in 24 hours?

A. 22 pints—and those 22 pints make the difference between summer swelter or comfort, damp or dry basements.

These questions and answers awaken us to the value of modern appliances and inspire us toward working harder to achieve modern living.

New Addition At Trinity Methodist Church Completed

Trinity Methodist Church at North Garden, has outgrown its facilities on two different occasions since it was originally built in 1892.

Twenty-two years ago the first addition was made which consisted of building Sunday School rooms on the rear of the existing church.

In the spring of 1952, the congregation decided that the facility of the present plant was not adequate to take care of the existing

The Sunday School rooms were crowded and there was also a demand for a kitchen and an assembly room which could be utilized for an auditorium as well as a dining room.

The members of the congregation decided to add on to the church and provide four additional Sunday School class rooms, an auditorium, kitchen with running water and inside toilets.

The men of the church volunteered to do the construction work and the materials were purchased locally from money donated by various members and friends.

At the present time the Sunday School part of the addition is 40 percent complete and the downstairs, comprising the auditorium and kitchen, is 90 percent complete.

The membership of the church is approximately 325.
