Mrs. Mary T. Fenwick

Mrs. Mary Fenwick Of Near Howardsville Honored At Reunion On 87th Birthday

Mrs. Mary T. Fenwick was recently honored at a family reunion on her 87th birthday at her home at Mt. Alto near Howardsville. Most of her seven children were present and many of her 10 grandchildren and six great grandchildren. This is the nicest kind of celebration, to Mrs. Fenwick's way of thinking, as she loves to have her family come to visit her.

She lives alone in the house which has been home to her ever since she was married. She manages much of her own housekeeping, and still raises chickens, kills them herself and keeps them in the freezer ready to serve to the children and grandchildren who love to come to "Grandma's house."

Her children are Miss Leslie Fenwick of Lynchburg, T. G. and H. E. Fenwick of Howardsville, Mrs. John White of Scottsville, Mrs. C. V. Giannini of Howardsville, Mrs. M. J. McLean of Richmond and Howardsville and Mrs. Ruby F. Robertson of Richmond. Mrs. Fenwick, a member of Howardsville Methodist Church, is active in church work and loves to entertain.

Asked what her favorite pastime is, she replied, "reading, especially my Bible. She also enjoys listening to her radio and writing letters to her children and relatives."

The former Miss Mary S. Thomas, she married William Wood Fenwick. They spent their life together on the 300-acre farm at Mt. Alto. She is a native of Howardsville.

While she loves her home, Mrs. Fenwick has always been interested in traveling and has toured many of the southern states. Recently she spent the night with one of her daughters, Mrs. John White, in Scottsville.

While her age may imply that she is advanced in years, her keen interest in her friends, home and family belie her years. If it is true that you are only as young as you feel, then Mrs. Fenwick is indeed not an oldster.

Teachers Meet To Organize Art Section For District; Sharing Of Ideas Discussed

At the annual meeting, District J, of the Virginia Education Association Friday at the new Albemarle High School, Charlottesville, a group of teachers met to organize the Art Section for the District which covers eight surrounding counties—Albemarle, Buckingham, Fluvanna, Greene, Louisa, Madison, Nelson, Orange, and the City of Charlottesville.

Presiding at the art meeting was Mrs. Elizabeth Pace of Buckingham who presented a letter from Miss Ina L. Lethco, President of the art section of the V. E. A. addressed to Mr. O. P. Sadler, District J President of the V. E. A. In the letter, Miss Lethco states that Dr. Richard Wiggins, Acting State Supervisor of Art Education, in Richmond, has called attention to the fact that many art teachers throughout the state have expressed a need and a desire to get together with other art teachers to share ideas and to solve problems. While it is most difficult for art teachers to meet on a state-wide basis often enough to satisfy this need, the District organization will be compact enough for continuous meetings throughout the year when so desired. Miss Lethco urged that District J organize, elect officers and send the names to her so that she can call for reports at the Business Meeting of the Art Section in Richmond this month.

At the committee meeting, the following officers were elected: Mrs. Comilla D. Payne, of Charlottesville, Chairman; Miss Mary Martin, of Charlottesville, Co-Chairman; Miss Laura E. Kinehart, art teacher at the new Albemarle High School, Secretary; and Mrs. Jeane Fowler Roberts, art teacher for Fluvanna County High School, Reporter.

Much interest was shown by all the teachers who attended the committee meeting including Mrs. Lucille E. Fray, Miss Blanche G. Utz, Miss Dicie C. Jenkins, Miss Frances F. Staley, Mrs. Eliza Clore, Mrs. Paul Mays, Mrs. Minnie Jones, Miss Diane Ricks, Mrs. Marshal B. Baker, Mrs. Mary Pace, Miss Alyce Crafton, Mrs. Josephine Snead, Miss Ann Fitch, Miss Barbara Westerman, and Miss Estelle Wood.

Since there is hardly time for a District J art meeting before the V. E. A. meets in Richmond October 28-30th, it is hoped that all teachers who expressed their interest, will meet next at the annual breakfast of the art section of the V. E. A. on Friday, October 30, at 9 a. m. at Ewart's cafeteria in Richmond. The October journal of the V. E. A. will give the full schedule for the art section.

Parish Service

Stierling G. Gordon, student at Virginia Episcopal Seminary, Alexandria, will conduct a parish service at Christ Church, Norwood, next Sunday at 11 a. m.

No service will be held Sunday at Trinity Church, Arrington.

Mr. Gordon will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Heath.

Hostesses Named For First P.T.A. Meeting Monday

Mrs. F. R. Moon, Jr., chairman of the hospitality committee of the Scottsville P. T. A., announced on Tuesday the names of the hostesses she has asked to serve at the first meeting next Monday night. They are Mrs. F. F. Marsh, Mrs. Larkin Londeree, Mrs. Raymon Thacker, Mrs. Lester Bailey, Mrs. Ben Kidd, Mrs. J. E. Ramsey, Mrs. Paul J. Miller and Mrs. F. R. Moon, Jr.

Mrs. Moon said that she hopes to put the emphasis of the hospitality committee on hospitality and general friendliness in P.T.A. this year, rather than on the refreshments.

Mrs. John Williamson is to assist her this year, in a new phase of the hospitality committee work; that is, in seeing that the out-of-town teachers who commute here every day to teach school are entertained at dinner each night before the P.T.A. meeting.

Grand Visitation To Eastern Star Chapter Observed

James River Chapter 122 of the Eastern Star was honored by the attendance of the Worthy Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Virginia at a meeting Monday night. This visit is made annually to the chapter and is called the Grand Visitation.

Preceding the meeting, the chapter held a banquet at the Traveller's Rest Hotel for Miss Adelle Major, who is the Worthy Grand Matron this year. Following the banquet, they adjourned to the Masonic Hall, at which time Miss Major gave an address on the subject "Love."

Guests from other chapters included Margaret Hagy, Bristol Chapter 28, district deputy grand lecturer of District 4; Helen Townsend of Queen Esther Chapter 14, Charlottesville; and several members of Fork Union Chapter III and Mizpah Chapter 32 of Richmond. Miss Major is from the Elizabeth Chapter 45 in Norfolk.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

Winners In Fishing Contest Announced

The fishing contest started by John F. Williamson, owner and operator of the Western Auto Associate Store in Scottsville, last spring ended October 1. Prizes have not all called for their winners, but are receiving rods, reels and lines for bringing in the largest and second largest fish in each of six classes. The entries were weighed by Gilbert Gibbs at Miller's Grocery.

Prize winners were as follows: Bass: Roy Hamner, Scottsville, six lb., 13 ounces; R. E. Brill, Scottsville, six pounds, one and one-half ounces. Trout: Sam Robertson, Scottsville, one pound, one-half ounce; Eugene Hamshar, Scottsville, one pound. Bream: Howard Scheier, Scottsville, 13 ounces; Dan and Mick Banton tied for second place with 12-ounce fish. Perch: Dabney Staton, Fluvanna County, one pound, one and one-half ounces; Wayne Craig, Scottsville, 13 ounces. Pike: L. H. Cleveland, three pounds, five ounces; Mrs. Roy Hamner, two pounds, 14 ounces. Mrs. Hamner was the only lady contestant.

Mr. Williamson said today he hopes to offer the same contest next year.

Barter Players Will Present "Ah, Wilderness"

The famous Barter Theatre of Virginia, which will give only one performance in Scottsville this year, will present Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness" at Victory Theatre on Thursday night, October 15, at 8:45 o'clock.

The play is a comedy in three acts based on home life in the year 1950. It tells a story of rebellious adolescence and tremulous young love. It is warmly compassionate, goodnatured and unpretentious. Eugene O'Neill, America's leading playwright, shows how interesting people really are when a great artist reveals them upon the stage.

"Ah, Wilderness" is the type of play that will appeal to young and old alike and promises an evening of good entertainment. It is being sponsored by the Scottsville Lions Club for the benefit of the Scottsville High School band. Advance reserved seat tickets are now on sale at Bruce's Drug Store and Jones' Store.

Brunswick Stew Set For October 10

Brunswick Stew will make its welcome appearance this Saturday, October 10, from 12 noon until 2 p.m. at the annual event held under the auspices of the ladies of Christ Church. The stew, which will simmer in a large iron pot over an open fire on the lawn at Glendower, (home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bradley) will attract people from all over the county who are familiar with the succulent goodness of this particular stew.

Mrs. Douglas Forsyth, who is the chairman of the luncheon, said that a soup stock would be prepared the day before and other ingredients added the next day, with seasoning left until the last.

With the stew, will be served cornbread and hot rolls. The cost of the luncheon is $1. for adults and $.50 for children.

Fairhaven Club's Sale In Success

The Fairhaven Garden Club had its second food sale last Saturday and announced that, due to the co-operation of the seventy-five women who donated their time and effort toward the food as well as the selling, they earned about half of the required amount to bring the Virginia Symphony here for a children's concert.

To bring the symphony here, they must raise $150., $75. of which they already have acquired from the two sales. When asked what they plan to do to raise the additional $75., they said that they would either charge a small admission to the adults attending the concert, or make up the deficit from their own treasury. They had hoped to interest other civic organizations in the concert, but a none were able to assist in the moneyraising campaign.

France Is Nominated For National Award

P. H. France, county agent of Fluvanna County, has been nominated for a distinguished service award to be presented at the National Convention of County Agents in Philadelphia. The nomination was made by the Virginia Association of County Agents at a meeting on August 24. Mr. France will attend the convention in Philadelphia October 10-14.

He is being sponsored by the National Bank and Trust Company of Charlottesville, whose branches at Palmyra and Fork Union serve Fluvanna County.

Mr. France has been county agent for the past 10 years, and has been in Agriculture extension and vocational agriculture work for the past 23 years. He is a graduate of the School of Agriculture.

Appalachian Electric Power Co.
CHOOSE WASHABLE MAN-MADE FABRICS FOR CHILD'S
BACK-TO-SCHOOL TOGS

Here's good news for mothers!

Fall and winter clothing for youngsters will be far easier to keep looking neat and clean this year, according to the General Electric Consumers Institute, because man-made fibers will be strongly represented in children's dresses, skirts, blouses, jumpers, suits, coats, slacks, socks and jackets. With the help of a washer and dryer, many of the items can be laundered at home and as a result, the children will need fewer clothes.

Why? With a washer, a dryer, and a soap-and-water wardrobe, any day can be washday, and when any day is washday, it's easier to get clothes clean quickly — and keep them clean. Many garments made of man-made fibers can be laundered after school one day, and they will be clean, neat, and ready to wear the very next morning.

A good plan when buying washable garments is to look for a washability fact-tag on the garment, and if the manufacturer says the garment is washable, save yourself time and energy by using your washer.

100% Orlon, Nylon, Dacron, Dynel, and Acrilan take to the washer enthusiastically, without shrinkage and with good shape retention. Combinations of these fibers with wool or other natural fibers, such as Lorette (55% Orlon-45% wool), Visa (55% Dacron-45% wool), and Sanforlan (85% wool-15% Nylon), also can be laundered successfully at home. For a professional look, you might want to give them a finishing touch with a warm iron after the garment has completely dried.

Here are some tips for laundering these new fabrics at home:

1. Look for a fact-tag on the garment. It should not only specify the exact fiber content of the particular fabric, but also give specific instructions as to its care. In most cases, the man-made fiber content should be greater than the natural fiber content. Save the fact-tag, and follow washing instructions implicitly.

2. Carefully check the garment construction. Are the seams generous and resistant to raveling? Is the fabric used for trim the same as that in the garment? If not, is it as thoroughly washable? In selecting washable suits and slacks, check the lining, trim, innerlinings, and all "hidden findings" to be sure they will wash successfully.

3. Because of the nature of the fiber, dirt does not penetrate deeply into man-made fibers; consequently, they require a very short wash period.

Many manufacturers' fact-tags give specific recommendations for laundering their garments in automatic home laundry equipment. However, if the manufacturer has labeled the garment washable, but has not given specific laundering recommendations, a good rule of the thumb is to fill the washer with warm water, add a mild soap or detergent, and wash 3 minutes, spin 3 minutes, and rinse 3 minutes. Whether or not the washer is allowed to continue through the final dry period depends upon whether the garment is to be drip-dried or dried in an automatic clothes dryer.

4. "Drip-dry" is a popular and effective method of drying many garments of the newer fabrics. Drip-dry means exactly what it says—to drip until dry. The weight of the water actually does your ironing for you. It is especially important to use this method when drying accordion-pleated garments, trousers with heat-set creases, etc. When drip-drying, omit the final dry period and remove the garment directly from the rinse water.

Use well-shaped wooden coat and skirt hangers for the drip-dry process. If the garment shoulders are broad, pad the hanger with wash clothes to prevent crease caused by drooping. When the felt on slack or skirt hangers is colored, protect the garment from stains with an old face cloth.

Remove that section of the garment which will be hung first (skirt top, trouser cuffs, or the shoulders of a jacket or dress); insert the hanger; then lift the garment from the rinse water. Hold the garment over a pan to receive drip-water and hang the garment on a clothes line. When drying indoors, place the pan underneath the garment to catch water as it drips.

5. Depending upon the construction of the garment, most man-made fibers can be dried successfully in an automatic clothes dryer. 100% Orlon coats, for example, dry beautifully in the dryer and need no ironing whatsoever. Many, however, will require some touching up with a warm iron. If you prefer a sharp pleat or crease in heat-set pleated or creased garments, you'd better drip-dry, for a dryer tends to soften the pleats and reduce the sharpness of creases.

County Farm Notes

By P. H. France, County Agent
Natural Resources Conservation
Week Planned In Virginia For
October 11 - 17

Virginia's annual Natural Resources Conservation Week has been set for October 11-17.

The dates were designated by Governor John S. Battle, who issued the following statement:

"It seems appropriate that Virginians of all walks of life should pause annually to take stock of the natural resources that have contributed so much to make ours a great State. In order that we may alert ourselves to the importance of protecting and using wisely these natural resources, I urge all Virginians to join with the Virginia Association of Soil Conservation Districts in the third observance of Natural Resources Conservation Week, October 11-17.

"Since the passage of the Virginia Soil Conservation Districts Act by the 1938 session of the General Assembly, landowners of 95 of the 98 agricultural counties of the State have organized 27 Soil Conservation Districts to combat soil erosion and promote a program of wise use of our farmlands and forests.

"This action on the part of Virginia landowners clearly indicates the purpose of this group to unite their efforts to protect the soil and water, forest and wildlife resources on which the present and future welfare of all of us depends. This organized action has accounted for the development of complete soil and water conservation plans for more than 30,000 of the 150,000 farms of Virginia. In addition, thousands of farms have adopted one or more conservation practices as the result of the influence of Soil Conservation Districts.

"Not only has much progress been made in applying conservation, but perhaps of equal significance has been the growing recognition by Virginians of the importance of these resources to the welfare of all the people. This recognition is not only borne out by the assistance provided Soil Conservation Districts by the trained personnel of agricultural agencies, but by the scores of other organizations and thousands of individuals who have so willingly given their time to the conservation movement.

"We should take pride in the accomplishments to date, for these are accomplishments most worthy of recognition. But in so doing, let us not be complacent or lose sight of the importance of the tremendous conservation job that lies ahead.

"I appeal to the citizens of the Commonwealth to pause during Natural Resources Conservation Week (October 11-17) and take stock of where we are with the conservation job. Then with added determination and zeal for doing the job, I urge you to re-double your efforts in conserving and protecting the soil and water, forest and wildlife resources of this Commonwealth."

Corn Prices Due To Rise
A rise in the price of corn is in the offing, believes Dr. J. L. Max-

Hog and poultry numbers are expected to increase in Virginia and in the United States, and beef and dairy cattle are expected to remain relatively constant in 1954. As a result the demand for corn for feeding livestock is expected to increase over present levels. The short corn crop (24,000,000 bushels) estimated for Virginia this year should result in prices for corn somewhat higher than those now prevailing.

Virginia feeders likely will buy large amounts of out-of-state corn for their 1954 feeding operations at prices somewhat higher than at

Fire Prevention Week Good Time To Check Hazards

If you didn't have any fire losses on the farm this year, was it because you were just lucky?

National Fire Prevention Week, October 4-10, is a good time to check up on fire hazards around the farm and home. The Virginia Rural Safety Council warns against a repeat of last year when 142 residents of rural Virginia lost their lives in fires and explosions.

In calling attention to National Fire Prevention Week, the Council urges everyone to initiate a year-round campaign in their homes and communities against the needless waste of life and property caused by destructive fires.

Nation-wide last year, fires caused a loss of about $133,000,000 worth of farm property and the

D. C. Kennedy, Jr., assistant manager of Appalachian Electric Power Company welcoming Reddy Kilowatt as new employee.

"Reddy Kilowatt" Is Newest "Employee" At Appalachian Electric Power Company

Meet "Reddy Kilowatt," the Appalachian Electric Power Company's newest employee. According to G. R. Neubauer, district manager, the readers of this newspaper will be seeing a great deal of Reddy as he is going to be one busy little fellow. Reddy will be working as one of Appalachian's representatives.

To the average reader, Reddy may appear a bit strange at first glance. That may be so—because Reddy Kilowatt is the personification of electricity. His ears are wall plugs and he wears rubber shoes and gloves for silence and safety as he moves about. Even Reddy's name is symbolic of the service he represents.

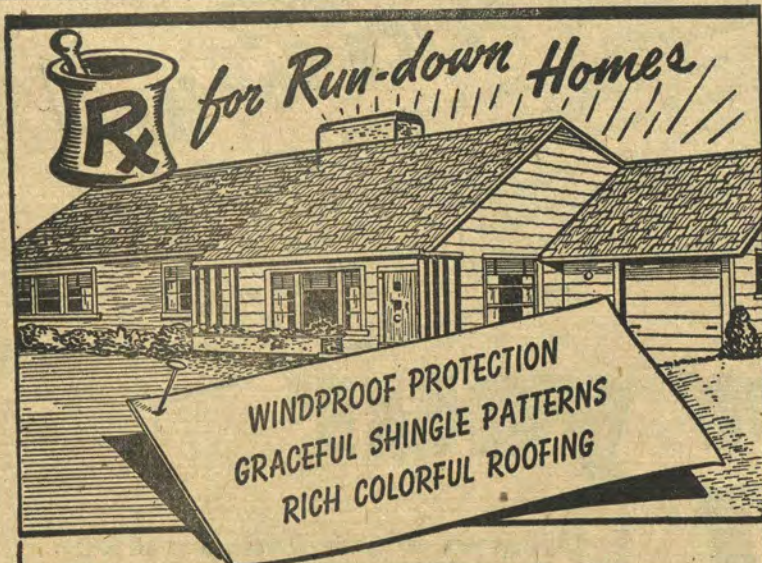

Reddy, by nature, is a friendly little fellow and you rarely find him without a smile. He will be working for Appalachian in its newspaper advertising; on radio and television; in company offices; and elsewhere about power company properties. Reddy will talk about Appalachian's services; its finances; its construction programs; and many other phases of the electrical business.

That may sound like a great deal of work but those are Reddy's responsibilities. Through Reddy Kilowatt, the company can describe much of its technical business; its engineering achievements; and other information in down to earth terms. The power company wants you and the rest of its customers to know and to understand its business as you do your favorite grocery. Reddy will help Appalachian tell its story in many ways.

Cheerful and friendly Reddy is a versatile individual. Although he makes his home in your Reddy Box—your electric outlet—he runs, walks, jumps and does anything that you can do. He is fast. In fact—Reddy breaks all speed records as he rockets along at 186,000 miles a second. He also wears a variety of costumes and participates in every sport. He works with tools and can drive any car, truck, tractor or other equipment Appalachian owns. Reddy does 'most anything at all.

In Reddy's own words, "You'll be seein' plenty of me."

TIDBITS

By Nancy Dorrier

The Andrew Dawsons had a rip-roaring bridge party Friday night. It was the monthly meeting of their mixed bridge club, but instead of the usual four tables, there were only two . . . the whole crowd was incapacitated, either dead tired or getting colds. In spite of drooping eyes and dry hacks though, they had a good time. It was quite miraculous.

Saturday the Dawsons attended the Virginia-University of South Carolina game in Charlottesville. Drew seemed rather doleful over the outcome . . . he's an ardent U. Va. supporter, and the team is not up to his standards this year.

On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. E. Grady Covington spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Fortune in Schuyler . . . they watched the fifth game of the Series on TV.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Payne and their daughter Ann with Mrs. L. H. Payne all of Shores visited the Norman Ownbys here in Scottsville on Saturday.

David and Louise Philpot with Allen left here last Saturday morning headed for Georgia for a week's vacation with their respective families, in Hogansville and La Grange. They pulled out with Allen ensconced in the back seat, well supplied with toys to keep him happy. They plan to be back for the coming week-end.

The Elmer Johnsons have succumbed to the TV rage at long last, only in a big way . . . They don't have one television . . . no, two . . . one, 17 inch and the other, 21 inch. They just can't make up their minds which one they like the best. Imagine the chaos with both of them going at the same time while the Yanks and the Dodgers are having a big fight. Elmer said he was going to spend the whole day Saturday looking at the Series, and then the Football game. He was so excited!

Visiting Mrs. Gunn Sharwood at Landaff, Carters Bridge this week-end and attending the game in Charlottesville, were her daughter and son-in-law from Richmond. On Sunday, they all came over to Solitude, Paul McFarlane's place. Little Mary and Sue Harris were home at the Percy Harrises for the week-end. They arrived on Saturday and left Sunday.

Mrs. M. I. Dunn has just returned from Richmond where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. James Guy. She left here very sick, but she's much better now, her trip must have done her a lot of good.

The Hugh Flynn's, who left Scottsville amidst much weeping and wailing from all their good friends, wrote a letter addressed to all the members of the bridge club to which they belonged, and it was read to the same crowd that was so beat down last Friday. Hugh wrote the letter, and it was the only thing that kept the crowd awake enough to play bridge . . . it was wonderful! They'll never know just how much they missed.

One time at the fair in Richmond was not enough for Gertrude Moore . . . she went with Tom and Sis Coleman and Hazel Payne the first Saturday night it was open, but returned on Friday night, and took her daughter, Diane, with her.

Ruby Carden had a coffee on Thursday morning honoring Jean Jones, who moved here a few months ago from Burlington. Also here were Ruby's sister and a friend of her's from Burlington, Tressie Masey and Maxine de Ford. They arrived on Monday and left on Thursday afternoon.

Harry and Betty Langhorne had as their guest on Friday night, Arthur Lyon-Vaden of Aberdeen, Md. Mr. Lyon-Vaden, a prospective rector for the two churches in St. Ann's parish, met with the joint vestry in St. John's parish house. At the end of the meeting, the ladies of the vestry served refreshments.

Mrs. T. L. Driscoll of Richmond came up on Wednesday to see her mother, Mrs. Jackson Beal, Sr. and her sister, Lou. She left on Sunday with Helen and Rebecca Kelso who were here for the day visiting Agnes and Jack Beal.

Saturday C. R. Dorrier, Liz Goodwin, John and Nancy Dorrier (that's me) went to Richmond to dinner and the Richmond-V. M. I. game scheduled for Saturday night.

The game was excruciatingly exciting but time ran out on V. M. I. and broke our hearts. Just one more minute and the Big Red team would have scored another touchdown . . .

Last Tuesday, the Jack Taylors took a carload to the fair. Besides themselves and their two boys, Robert and Beverley, there were in the car, C. B. Johnson, Butch Carden, Edward Bailey and Frances Moon. They should buy a touring car for all that group!! On Wednesday, they received guests from Bloxom, Mr. Taylor's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Owens. The Owens stayed from Wednesday until Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Patteson, daughter and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Blake of Centenary came up over Sunday from Richmond.

It was regular ole home week at Milton and Rose Mae Cohen's sister-in-law and brother's, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Oseroff, of Norfolk on Sunday. They were entertaining in honor of their son, Dr. Bernard Oseroff, and his bride-elect, Miss Eileen Schotts, with the whole family and many friends invited. Miss Schotts is from Carmel, N. Y. and is a real bigwig in New York where she is the managing editor of one of the McFadden publications. Dr. Oseroff is also outstanding as chief resident in Dermatology at Bellevue Hospital. Miss Schotts' mother came down with her and Dr. Oseroff for the big event. Milton and Rose Mae have decided that they are growing old . . . the trip beat them down completely, and they used to be so cosmopolitan that they dashed to Washington any old time. That's what age does for you!

Mary Moon and her children came over from Charlottesville on Sunday to visit Mrs. Cary N. Moon of Shirland.

Bobby Spencer, ex-editor of the Sun, was home for the week-end from the University of Richmond where he has begun his freshman year. He came by bus on Saturday night, and went back Monday morning early. He was due back for a class at 8:45 but the bus was late, and he didn't leave here until 6:35 . . . it must have been quite a rush to make that class!! Also at the Spencers over Sunday were Kirk's sister, Mrs. J. E. Winn, and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Winn and their children, Barbara and Spencer, all from Richmond.

The Harold Parris and daughter, Betty, and the Ashby Mayos got real fancy on Sunday and drove up the Skyline Drive to Big Meadow and had dinner. They said that the food and atmosphere were both all that they were cracked up to be.

At the Joe Leaps on Sunday were their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Leap, with their children, Gerry and Steve, from Waynesboro. Also Mrs. Leap's sister and her husband came from Earlysville for the day. (Continued on last page)

Your Car will never be Worth More!

WE WANT YOUR CAR

... and we'll pay TOP PRICE for it!

Your car is depreciating in value as it gets older . . . we can give you the best price for it NOW! Here's why: As you know, our Fords—new and old—are selling faster than ever! Naturally we want to keep this rapid turnover going—but we need more used cars to do it! That's where the high price comes in — for you!

Here's where you get the Most for your Money!

FORD Worth more when you buy it... Worth more when you sell it!

Ford brings you everything (and we mean everything) you've ever wanted in a car, at a price, that's well within your reach!

You have your choice of Ford's famous high-compression V-8 or the Mileage Maker Six—with Overdrive, this year's Economy Sweepstakes winner. Both have Ford's Automatic Power Pilot which meters just the right amount of gas. And only Ford brings you Center-Fill Fueling that permits "filling up" from either side of the car, suspended pedals that eliminate floor holes, foam-rubber cushions front and rear in all models, and a new "Wonder Ride" which reduces road shock in the front end alone up to 80%!

According to used car surveys, a year-old Ford returns more of its original cost than any other car.

SERVING THE PEOPLE OF THE TOWN OF SCOTTSVILLE AND THE NEIGHBORING COMMUNITIES IN ALBEMARLE, FLUVANNA AND BUCKINGHAM COUNTIES

The Greenlease Kidnapping

The finding of the body of six-year-old Bobby Greenlease buried in a shallow grave in the backyard of one of the abductors in St. Joseph, Mo., today revealed one of the most heinous crimes in the history of the nation.

The blond youngster was taken from a private school ten days ago by a woman who posed as his aunt. Since that time his family and close ones have lived what probably seemed like years of fear and anxiety. The father, a wealthy automobile dealer paid $600,000 in ransom, it was revealed.

The case is in many aspects similar to the famous Lindbergh kidnapping. However, one difference is that the hoodlums who took the life of this innocent boy have admitted their guilt.

The atrocity committed by the three abductors is one that will raise the ire of millions. If reports so far are accurate, no punishment could be too severe.

It is reported that all three abductors have previous criminal records. The man who admits the actual cold-blooded shooting of the boy was released only last spring—paroled from a five-year term after having served less than two years.

This crime should put parole boards all over the nation on guard against turning loose hardened criminals at the expense of the safety and welfare of the people. Boards which consistently turn thugs free to prey upon the rest of the nation should be ousted. The time has come when they should realize their great responsibilities and tighten the reins on permitting wrongdoers to go free. Certainly it would do much to curtail crime since more than 50 per cent of our serious crimes are committed by men and women with previous records of law-breaking.

 The nomination of Governor Warren of California to the important and exalted office of Chief Justice of the United States is hard to take. Not only that but the significance and meaning of this nomination is that there is no longer any doubt as to the real position of the Eisenhower Administration. That position is left. It is very much to the left.
 The reputation of Governor Warren is that of a leftie. As among nationally known Republicans Warren has stood further to the left than any other with the possible exception of Senator Ives of New York. As Governor of California he stood as the idol of the most extreme of the lefties. He spent and spent and spent of the substance of the people. He pushed and shoved his state into adoption of almost every reactionary concept of the lefties. He even sought to block efforts to boot communists out of the California educational system.
 The main function of the Supreme Court is the interpretation of the Constitution of the United States and which is the basic law left than any other with the pos-

 THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you. (Matthew 17:20.) Read Psalm 100 or Matthew 18:1-6.

A friend of mine is a lad of 17. He comes of unfortunate parentage, but God Himself has become his Father and is helping him, for the lad has accepted Christ as his Saviour. He is now a boarding student in a Christian school where he is preparing himself for the Christian ministry, most probably for work among non-Christians.

In the next few years he has already lived, he has known extreme poverty, but his faith in the love of his Father has never failed. At one period in his life, despite rain and snow, he never missed a prayer meeting. He would run from his home beyond a river and wade in the water in order to be on time, while many with leisure would not forsake their firesides. He has kept up his faith with a smile. He loves and serves his lord with gladness.

PRAYER

Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for Thy miracle-working power in the lives of Thy children. We ask today for that childlike faith. Make of us true witnesses of Thine. In Thy dear name we ask it. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

I will cast my burden upon the Lord; for He cares for me.

The Incarnation Of Jesus

Editor's Note: This week we start the first chapter of an unusual piece of literature which was submitted to us last summer by the Rev. Elmer M. Ramsey, a native of Albemarle County, and a Scottsville High School alumnus. Mr. Ramsey is a retired Baptist minister, 80 years of age. When he was five years old, his mother purchased a small religious book and taught him about the coming of Jesus. He states that since that time he has held a deep interest in the subject. The work which we are publishing is a result of earnest study and a vast amount of research through 75 years. The information, says Mr. Ramsey, was not secured in college, the seminary nor in the university. His thesis, he continued, "is based on the Holy Word of God. I am a Bible student. I continue to read and study the Bible. It is also based on theology, history, archeology, logic, philosophy, chronology, plausible theories and logical conclusions."

Mr. Ramsey attended West Central Academy, Richmond College, The Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., and the American University, Washington, D. C. He has served as pastor on the Earlsville field, the Lowesville field and the Randle Highland Church, Washington, D. C.; also at Cape Charles and Clover. He has two sons, one of whom lives in south Albemarle County and the other in Charlottesville. During his ministry he did evangelistic work in Virginia, Washington, D. C., North Carolina and South Carolina.

In speaking of his work, The Incarnation of Jesus, Mr. Ramsey states that "Christmas, which celebrates the coming of Jesus, charms and thrills me more than any other subject. I dearly love Christmas trees and Christmas plays, but I have never seen a play, or pageant, which correctly interprets the coming of Jesus, according to the Bible." This article, we hope, will be of interest to all of our readers and, as the Christmas season draws near, will bring to them a greater and deeper appreciation of that Holy Day.

THE INCARNATION OF JESUS "Copyright"

The Preexistence of Jesus
 "In the beginning the Word existed. The Word was with God, and the Word was divine. It was he that was with God in the beginning. Everything came into existence through him, and apart from him that life came into existence, and that life was the light of mankind. The light is still shining in the darkness, for the darkness has never put it out." Goodspeed, Jno. 1:1-5

The Word, here signifies the Eternal Son of God, uncreated wisdom, the second Person of the adorable trinity. Prior to Jesus' coming from heaven to earth, he was a great king, and ruled conjointly with God the Father. Before him angels and archangels fell prostrate, and cast their golden crowns at his feet.

The Creation
 Subsequently God created the earth and the luminary bodies. After God in His all wise providence had made the necessary provision for them, God made man and woman and placed them in the beautiful garden in Eden, to till it and look after it.

A Beautyspot in the Garden
 In the garden, the landscape was most beautiful, with the choicest trees bearing luscious fruit. The loveliest and sweetest flowers were blooming in profusion, while their enchanting fragrance filled the air. The clear waters of the winding river were wending their way to the deep blue sea.

Adam
 Adam is monarch of all that he surveys. He is walking and meditating as he views his vast domain. He is the sole possessor, general superintendent and business manager and no man disputes his authority.

Eve

Eve appears in her beauty and simplicity. She is gazing in rapture at the marvelous landscape. She is also charmed with the sweet flowers and delicious fruits.

The Serpent Enters

"Now the serpent was the most clever of all the wild beasts that the Lord God had made." Meek, Gen. 3:1

Adam and Eve Together

Adam and Eve are blissfully happy basking in the most delightful portion of the charming Garden.

The Temptation

The serpent said to the woman, "And so God has said that you are not to eat from any tree in the garden?" "From the fruit of the trees in the garden we may eat," the woman said to the serpent; "it is only concerning the fruit of the tree which is in the middle of the garden that God has said, 'You may not eat any of it, nor touch it, lest you die.'" But the serpent said to the woman, "You would not die at all; for God knows that the very day you eat of it, your eyes will be opened, and you will be like gods who know good from evil." So the woman believed the words of the serpent, and now she is looking and longing for the forbidden fruit. Then she yielded to temptation and took some of the fruit, ate it, and gave some to her husband with her, and he ate.

Then they realized that they had sinned, and they were very miserable.

Later they hid themselves from the Lord God among the trees in the garden. God asked Adam "Have you eaten from the tree from which I commanded you not to eat?" Adam replied, "The woman whom you set at my side, it was she who gave me fruit from the trees; so I ate it."

Then the Lord God said to the woman, "Whatever have you done?"

The woman said, "It was the serpent that misled me, so I ate it."

So the Lord God said to the serpent, "Because you have done this, the most cursed of all animals you shall be, and of all wild beasts.

On your belly you shall crawl, and eat dust, as long as you live.

I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your posterity and hers;

They shall attack you in the head, and you shall attack them in the heel."

To the woman he said, "I will make your pain at childbirth very great;

In pain shall you bear children; and yet you shall be devoted to your husband, while he shall rule over you."

And to the man he said, "Because you have followed your wife's suggestions, and ate from the tree which I commanded you not to eat, Cursed shall be the ground through you,

In suffering shall you gain your living from it as long as you live; Thorns and thistles shall it produce for you,

So that you will have to eat wild plants. By the sweat of your brow shall you earn your living, Until you return to the ground, Since it was from it that you were taken;

For dust you are, And to dust you must return." Meek, Gen. 3:17-19

After God had pronounced the curse upon the poor, weak, and sinful couple, as he saw them doomed and damned, his great heart was touched with pity for his erring ones.

"God saw them in their lost estate; His loving kindness oh how great. He beheld them ruined by the fall; Yet loved them notwithstanding all."

Ramblings

Now that everybody's watching television instead of going to the movies, it's a wonder somebody doesn't invent a living-room size pop corn machine, complete with boxes. They are easier to reach in the dark than a bowl on a table. Also, when a group of guests is watching anything less intense than the World Series or a Rose Bowl Game, I think the house rules should include turning off the machine, turning on the lights and letting everybody get acquainted or re-acquainted, just so human contact won't be lost along without new-found inventions. We went once to a party (?) where the program had already started, the lights were low, the refreshment was delicious, but we left early, bidding our hostess goodnight in the dark, and haven't the remotest idea who all was there except the persons on either side of us.

A Sunday magazine section has part of the copy for this week's column which has been quietly sitting in the back of my head while it was coming out of somebody's on to paper. It concerns the fascination of the little red caboose that trails along at the end of so many long trains we watch at railroad crossings. Diesels may come and the old iron horse may go, but the little red "cab" goes on forever. It is a cheery sight on a cold winter night to see the warm golden glow of lantern on a table through the tiny window of the red car that is a sort of clubhouse for the train crew. The huge silver coaches, the mammoth red box cars, seem unreal as they roll along the track, but that little house on wheels at the end of the string always looks inviting and makes a deep impression on little folks. One of our little boy's first words was "boose", which he said as he pointed to the last car on his brother's wind-up train.

The Moody Institute has put out a series of excellent films in an effort to bring religion closer to those who can not be reached in church because they do not attend. By showing the wonders of nature to be even more wonderful than those produced by man through his knowledge of science, the institute seeks to show that God is a greater inventor than man. It is a sad thing, it seems to me, that in order to bring religion to certain groups of people, even those in schools and colleges, it is necessary to camouflage a film and call it "educational" so that it will be allowed to be shown, in order to bring a simple Sunday School message at the end of it. If it were labeled "religious" it would not be allowed in many places where it gets by as "educational." Certainly in this country, there should be no danger of criticism if religion in such a general non-sectarian form is presented to people, young or old. The idea that knowledge and education can be separated from any discussion of the works of the Almighty seems rather dangerous in itself. It is a question for much study and discussion. But it is a fine project, even if the religion has to be administered in a sugar-coated pill for certain misguided people.

The Meanderer

We just don't understand why it doesn't rain, and our enjoyment of the beautiful warm and sunny days is somewhat dampened by the realization that land and water conditions are becoming increasingly more serious. Feeling that the blue skies and summer temperatures couldn't possibly hold out much longer, we took a trip last Sunday to the Peaks of Otter. We hadn't been there in years—not since before the National Park Service took over. We were surprised at the amount of color we found along the Parkway south of the James, and from several vistas the mountains showed a great deal of red and yellow. The overall picture was more like one we would expect a little later in the season, however for most of the color was rather subdued. Only individual trees showed the striking and brilliant contrast with the green. This may be due to the very dry weather and the fact that the trees are turning more quickly.

There is a splendid paved road nearly up to the top of Sharp Top, one of the two mountains which form the Peaks. Only a mountain trail leads up to Flat Top. We did not, however, take the bus which makes trips up the mountain from May until November, but walked up the winding road, around and around, and then took the snort trail from the bus turn-around up to the rocky promontory of Sharp Top. The view in all directions was almost breath-taking, and we were lucky that the sun, just about to go down in the west, cast lovely lights on the surrounding mountains and valleys. There were Carolina Juncos toward the summit of Sharp Top, and we also saw a pair of Ruby-crowned Kinglets, and Black-throated Blue Warblers. On the way up we had seen some of these same warblers, also Golden-crowned Kinglets, Chickadees, Myrtle Warblers, a Downy Woodpecker, and heard several other kinds of chirps and calls which we did not identify. On the way down a Grouse hen poised in the middle of the road while we got a good look at her.

The climax of the day occurred when, on our way back over the Drive, after dark, our headlights fell on a black object on the side of the road. It was a black bear cub, looking rather startled and uncertain.

One evening last week we attended the organizational meeting of a Lynchburg branch of the Virginia Society of Ornithology (VSO). Anyone interested in birds is welcome to become a member, and we hope that a good group young and old from around the County, will want to join up with the folks in Lynchburg. Consult the Meanderer or Dr. Ruskin Freer at Lynchburg College for further details. The next meeting is on Oct. 23, at 8 o'clock, at the Biology lab at Randolph Macon College.

death of 3,000 farm people. About 95 percent of these fires resulted from carelessness and neglect.

Summary On Ram Sales Given
More rams were sold for higher average prices in this year's commercial ram sales than during the preceding year.

George A. Allen, Jr., associate animal husbandman at VPI, said 291 animals were sold for an average of $79.21 per head, as compared with 269 last year going for $76.38.

The sales in the Valley and northern Virginia had higher average prices—$82 per head—than those in the southwest, where the rams brought an average of $74.83. Suffolks topped the price list, bringing an average of $84.57. They were followed closely by Hampshires, which brought $84.25. Southdowns followed at $75.16; Dorsets, 67.10; Shropshires, $66.50; and Cheviots, $48.75.

Highest prices of all sales were received at Richmond, where nine Hampshires and three Suffolks averaged $116.87. This was a new sale.

Largest consignment—59 rams—

was at Abingdon, but prices were off, with the average at $70.75. Lowest prices—an average of $64.85, were received at the Wyttheville sale.

I'm REDDY KILOWATT Your Electric Servant

You've never seen me before because I've always stayed inside the REDDY-BOX—your electric outlet. Now I'm stepping out so that we can get better acquainted.

I'm the symbol of good electric service . . . your servant that runs everything electrical.

I'm not like anyone you've ever seen before. My body is made of lightning flashes—my nose a light bulb—my ears are outlets—and those two things sticking out of my head are wisps of curly hair. I move silently in my rubber shoes. I move swiftly too, at the speed of 186 thousand miles per second . . . I'm the fastest thing on earth.

I'm your economical and willing servant who works long hours at low wages. Whenever you want me I'll be waiting in your nearest REDDYBOX—electric outlet. Remember, just . . . "PLUG IN, I'M REDDY".

Country Lawyer

(Continued from page six) of our land. It is our Charter of Freedom so to speak. It is our protection against tyranny.

President Roosevelt attacked our Constitution. He advanced what amounted to the theory that the Constitution was of rubber and that it could be stretched like rubber through interpretation. To that end he brazenly and openly nominated men of his opinion and views to the Court. As a result our constitution has been changed by Court interpretation instead of through amendment.

In the main the pre-Roosevelt interpretation of the Constitution kept the Federal Government out of the personal affairs of the people. That has been changed to where today Federal bureaucrats are in everybody's business, regulating, pushing, shoving and terrorizing the people. All of that change was brought about by packing our Court with lefties who have reduced our constitution to a rubbery mass to be stretched in any way and in any direction to authorize and approve and advance every step by the Federal Government into the economic affairs of the people.

Those who believe in our system and in conserving our system swung into support of General Eisenhower after he had received the Republican nomination last year. In the campaign he made many pronouncements of a conservative nature. Discerning people suspected that he was of the leftie persuasion but there was no place else for them to go. It was considered that the general would be less leftish than Stevenson.

Now with the Warren appointment the Eisenhower pattern has become clear. It is a pattern of continuation of the reactionary leftism of Roosevelt and Truman. It is a pattern of continuing attack upon the great liberal concepts upon which our whole system is based.

That President Eisenhower has lauded Warren as being of the middle of the road philosophy does not make it so. It only means that he sees the extreme left as being the middle. That is enough to send cold chills down the spines of those who believe in the liberalism of the Freedom of man as spelled out for us by the brilliant men of the revolutionary period.

Now with disclosure that the spirit of the reactionary left has gotten control of the Republican party as well as of the Democrat party a substantial problem is presented to the people. Where is there house for the forces of the Freedom and liberalism of the Freedom and Dignity of man? Must these forces start now to organize into a third party for 1956? Certainly as the picture is now presented of lefties in control of both major parties a way must be found to oppose this reactionary situation. There must be a rallying point for conservatism if it is to be heard in our national life.

Cattle Disease Now Subsiding

Vesicular stomatitis, the virus disease that has been blistering the mouths of Virginia cattle, apparently is closing up shop for the winter, the State Department of Agriculture said today.

Only a few scattered new cases have been reported during the past week, all in the Lynchburg and Northern Virginia areas where the outbreaks were first reported. State and Federal veterans said the disease is following its typical pattern, a run of new cases in the fall, dropping off as winter approaches.

About all beef or dairy farmers can do if an outbreak occurs is call in a local veterinarian to treat the symptoms and help hasten recovery.

Vesicular stomatitis is not new to Virginia, but this is the first time since the drought of 1930 that it has been serious enough to take precautionary diagnostic measures.

Dr. John B. Healy, Assistant Veterinarian in Charge of Virginia of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry, has set up animal inoculation tests in the infected areas. Test results showed the disease to be vesicular stomatitis and not its dreaded first cousin, Foot-and-Mouth disease.

The State has already had a severe outbreak of vesicular exanthema in hogs, and what veterinary authorities strictly don't want is the third member of the vesicular trio, Foot-and-Mouth.

The vesicular stomatitis is caused by a specific virus. It produces blisters, or vesicles, around the mouth of cattle. Mycotic stomatitis produces no blisters.

Vesicular stomatitis is not a serious disease problem to regulatory veterinarians. It will mean loss of flesh or milk production for a period, but cattle will recover without crippling or permanent production losses.

Cattle, horses and hogs all get vesicular stomatitis, but humans are immune. Recovered animals are permanently immune to a second infestation.

Veterinarians don't know where the virus of vesicular stomatitis comes from, but they do know it spreads rapidly from animal to animal and farm to farm, even jumping to a new area without warning at times.

To prevent spread of the disease would require elaborate and expensive quarantines more troublesome than the disease, according to the State Department.

At the same time, Department veterinarians are not standing idly by. An animal inoculation diagnosis has been made in each outbreak area, and a close watch is being kept on any new outbreaks.

If the disease continues to follow its cycle, the frosty winter months should put it out of action, the Department said.

Mrs. E. E. Purdum of Appomattox is visiting Mrs. L. S. Caldwell this week. And speaking of the Caldwell, reminds me of a funny thing that happened to Livingston while he was on a fishing trip last week. They had anchored the boat, and were getting ready to cast when Livingston saw a thing on the water that looked like money.

They rushed to raise anchor and turn the boat around to get a better view, and found that it was $10. They fished it out of the deep and brought it home. What luck!

Hay Program

Emergency aid for the thousands of farmers in this area whose hay and pasture crops have been seriously damaged by the 1953 drought, was announced this week by Southern States Cooperative in the form of a hay purchasing program through which high quality hay will be supplied farmers at minimum cost.

The emergency program by the farmer-owned organization to aid not only its membership but all farmers in the stricken areas of Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee was announced along with the news that the cooperative was expanding its regular hay purchasing facilities and establishing a Drought Emergency Service headed by Garland E. Benton, of Baltimore, Md., and assisted by J. Eads Sprowles, of Elizabethtown, Ky., who will temporarily have headquarters at Louisville.

Hay buyers have already been sent to the nation's main hay-producing regions seeking top grades of hay for this area, and special efforts are being made to purchase this hay as soon as possible while good grades are still available. The drought has increased the demand for hay sharply and rising prices are expected this fall and winter.

"The major objective of the drought emergency program," said Benton, "is to furnish hay to farmers at the lowest possible price, thus reducing the cost of carrying cattle through the winter and preventing liquidation of livestock on a distress market."

Hay will be available through regular Southern States Cooperative Service Agencies. High grade cane molasses, suitable for mixing with roughage, will also be available at minimum cost through Agencies which are in position to render good service on molasses.

The Southern States action to provide hay at minimum cost to farmers came after it became apparent that no immediate program for subsidizing hay for farmers was planned by the federal government. Should such a program be developed and placed in operation later the Southern States program will be modified immediately, if necessary, Benton said, to operate in accordance with any U. S. plan.
