Luther Baber and "Kitty"

Merchant Luther Baber Has Varied Hobbies; Both He And Wife Natives of Centenary

By Elizabeth Wimer

When you walk into Luther Baber's general merchandise store in Centenary, you are likely to meet and start chatting with either Mr. or Mrs. Baber before long. And if you chat long or often enough, you will learn that store-keeping is not all that Mr. Baber is interested in by any means. This man with the friendly twinkle in his brown eyes has an interest in a lot of other things that make a visit in his home a fascinating experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Baber make their home in part of the building which houses the store. When you walk into their living quarters you are likely to meet a cat the color of tortoise shell who has distinguished herself by keeping alive for 15 years. That is a long time for a cat, even with nine lives. She answers to the name of "Kitty", and will come when called as well as any dog we have ever seen. Moreover, despite her years, she is still playful enough to chase her tail and cavort like a kitten. "Kitty" is the best mouser anybody ever saw, according to those who know her, and has been known to catch as many as five or six big rats in a day's hunting. Cat-like, she brings her prey to her master for praise which she gets, then takes it away for supper. Mr. Baber says he thinks one reason his cat is such a good mouse and rat-catcher is because up to recently she was never fed anything but milk every day. Now that she is older, she is keeping up her youth by being fed two or three meals a week by the Babers, but she supplements her diet still with mice and rats. Perhaps this is the secret of how a cat can live that long. Another secret that remains one is how she has escaped being run over on one of the two roads that intersect in front of the store. Many another cat has become a traffic fatality, but Kitty always comes home at night and sleeps in the house. She is also smart enough not to get into altercations with dogs, unless her master is reassuringly close by.

After you meet the cat, you are likely to look around and find that Mr. Baber is a collector. In the hall is a lovely carved cherry cabinet, which was "picked up" at an auction. On its shelves are miniature pieces of china, curious animals, tiny cups, and vases given him by friends and collected over many years.

This is only one of Mr. Baber's hobbies. Around the house, either displayed or stored away, are more than 300 pairs of salt and pepper shakers. He has been collecting these for so long that his friends all know about it and help add to his collection. There are antique shakers, novelties, and some from foreign places, such as the carved wooden ones from Cuba. One unusual pair is made from gun shell cases given him by a soldier in the last war.

Mr. Baber's most absorbing hobby is that of collecting old money. He has been doing this for more than 25 years. His collection now numbers complete series of pennies, dimes, nickels, quarters, 50-cent pieces, and several gold pieces. He has rare pieces, such as the valuable 1909 penny marked "S.V.D.", 20-cent pieces and American coins minted before 1800 and a complete set of Lincoln pennies.

Indicative of his interest in things unusual is Mr. Baber's collection of delicate wood carvings by a Charlottesville carpenter, Morris Kellog. Among these are several chains carved out of a single piece of wood, with no break in any place. One wooden chain is 18 feet long, carved out of a piece 16 feet long. Another chain is no larger than a watch chain. These chains have at each end a hollow square in which is a ball that rolls around, all carved from the same piece of wood. There are several "towers," tapered filigreed pieces, with a series of hollow squares in each of which is a wooden ball. All this carving was done with an ordinary pen knife.

Mr. Baber was born about three miles from Centenary and has lived here most of his life. He married Miss Alice Tindall of Centenary. When he finished school he started out in the pulpwood business, in which he engaged until he opened his store in 1938. He still carries on the wood business along with his other merchandising.

He is a charter member of the Scottsville Lions Club and a member of Centenary Methodist Church.

Scottsville Trounces Crozet Nine, 16 to 6

Scottsville had little trouble in extending its winning streak to 3 games by walloping Crozet 16-6 in a wild game played here Wednesday afternoon.

Wallace Ferneyhough, making his first start of the season, was impressive as he gave up but 2 hits and struck out 8 during his 5 inning stint on the mound. Billy Moon breezed through the last two innings, striking out 4 men. Moon also led the offensive attack, connecting for a double and 3 singles in 5 appearances.

Crozet scored 2 runs in the top of the first inning, but Scottsville came back with 3 runs in the bottom of the first on hits by Charles Hamne; and Billy Moon, a walk to Franklin Ferneyhough, and Bill Ballard's 3 run error of Robert Bell's ground ball. Scottsville put the game on ice in the second inning when four hits, 3 walks, and 2 errors produced 7 runs.

New Parish Hall For St. John's Soon To Be Completed

The new parish hall of St. John's Episcopal Church in Scottsville, now under construction is progressing satisfactorily, according to the building committee. It is hoped that the building will be ready for use by the middle of June.

Construction on the addition was started in March, at which time the pastor, Rev. Beverly Tucker, conducted a short dedication ceremony after the regular church service.

Mr. Tucker is pastor of both St. John's Church and Christ Church at Glendower, and it was through his efforts that this joint project of both churches has been accomplished after they combined forces in a building fund campaign.

Hugh Flynn of the Scottsville church and Harry Langhorne of Christ Church head the building committee. Architect is Floyd Johnson of Charlottesville and contractors are Rittenhouse Brothers.

The hall will be used for Sunday schools of both churches and will contain three classrooms, a kitchen and large room with folding doors which may be used for partitions, and will be used by both churches for dinners and other gatherings.

The committee stated that the building will be available for community dinners and other affairs as well as for those of the church.

Architectural style of the parish house will blend with that of the church, which is white frame. It will be a combination of white weatherboard and stucco.

Elmer Johnson has recently taken office as Sunday School superintendent of St. John's Church. The Sunday School is now meeting in the primary school at Scottsville.

The discussion was led by Mrs. Frank Schumaker, from the Cunningham Club, and she suggested many uses for the utility room. They included heating, laundry, ironing, sewing, husband's work corner, wife's work corner, and men's wash room.

During the social hour refreshments were enjoyed, along with organ selections by Capt. G. R. Edgerton, and piano selections by Mrs. W. F. Duncan.

Disregard Dumping Law In County

Virginia's law against dumping on the State highways is little known, or else disregarded, by many people in Albemarle County, State Highway Resident Engineer W. W. Shields, of Charlottesville, said today.

Despite a strong law passed by the 1950 General Assembly, and reinforced at the 1952 session, the illegal dumping of trash and garbage along roadsides in this area continues to mar the beauty of local roadsides, create health problems and cause the road people no end of trouble, the Highway Department said.

The 1950 Code makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by a heavy fine or jail sentence, to dump anything on the right of way of any State highway, or on private property within sight of the highway without written permission of the owner.

The 1952 amendment strengthens the law on the throwing of bottles, cans or other debris on the highway. It also requires that any person or firm removing a wreck from a highway also remove any broken glass or other debris, or be guilty of a misdemeanor.

With the aid of Boards of Supervisors, Garden Clubs and other civic groups, the Highway Department has for some time been carrying on a campaign of education and prevention to rid roadsides of trash dumps and scattered refuse.

Nevertheless, much time and money are spent cleaning roadsides of trash heaps, and scattered beer cans, bottles, papers and other debris, the department said.

May Day Friday

May Day will be celebrated tomorrow instead of today at Scottsville High School because of the recent rainy weather, it was announced yesterday by school principal, T. H. Gillis.

All parents and friends of the school are invited. The program will begin at 1 p.m.

Poll Tax Must Be Paid By May 3 To Get Vote

The same delegates were elected to represent Fluvanna County at the Virginia Democratic State Convention to be held in Roanoke, July 17, with the following exceptions: Ray C. Omohundro was elected to represent Fork Union District, and T. Kent Loving the Columbia District.

The mass meeting adopted the unit rule to apply to the State Convention with the majority of those present at the time to determine how the entire vote of the delegation shall be cast.

Ramblings

Anyone living in the country could no more ignore the weather this week than he could a noisy but charming child who came to call. It has been full of tricks, working harm and good almost at the same time. The torrential rain was ruinous to some roads, freshly ploughed land, and any out-of-door projects. But they mercifully dampened down the woods and dry brush which were becoming dangerously dry. While the downpour worked a hardship on those of us who had to be out in it, especially driving a car, the miracle that turned the world into shades of brilliant green could not be missed. It seemed as though the barley across the road came into seed almost while we ate lunch, and I'm sure anyone could have seen the tulips rise and open if a careful watch had been kept.

The soft plumes of lilac blossoms have fluffed out everywhere and the dogwood was at its height, just when it was least tempting to drive out to see it. The trees with their flat-topped appearance, look like people with arms outstretched and palms upturned to catch what might fall from heaven. (No pennies, just rain.) Right along with the dogwood was the redbud show, pink lace, mingling with the young light green, that, massed across the landscape, looks like green smoke rolling up the hills.

Why not plant six of the old favorite herbs which used to be so often found in every kitchen garden? They thrive without fertilizer in poor soils, and give pleasure at the table all year around. These are lemon basil, dill, rosemary, marjoram, savory and sweet basil. The names are old-fashioned and poetic, and they make a poem out of many a meal. Seeds may be planted now, and plants may be obtained at many nurseries.

Speaking of poetic names, children will long remember, as I have a plant or two in the garden which they can take care of and which is different from the ordinary. This could be the sensitive plant, or touch-me-not, which closes its fern-like leaves at a touch, the pick-a-back, interesting because a smaller leaf grows atop a larger one; maranta, or prayer-plant, which "prays" at night, "flycatcher," which actually traps flies and bugs, and the miniature pansy, or viola, called "Johnny-Jump-up."

Now that the world has had a good drink it is smiling and we can only remember Browning's joy in it when he said, "The Year's at the spring, and day's at the morn; God's in His Heaven, All's right with the world."

Household Hints

By Betty J. Minnick
Home Economist
Appalachian Electric Power Co.

When you are steam ironing, says the General Electric Consumers Institute, move the iron in a forward direction so the material being ironed is steamed before being pressed by the dry part of the soleplate. Long, slow strokes are best for steam ironing.

General Electric gives further recommendations:

Grease cake pans, when greasing is required, on the bottom only and then line the bottom with wax paper. This plan allows only a minimum of crusty rim to form on the edge of the cake.

Rolls, coffee cake and other baked goods can be frozen right in the cardboard boxes in which they are sold. But they must not be stored longer than two weeks.

Lightweight linens and cottons can be dried in the same dryer load with heavier fabrics. Just set the time dial for the shorter drying period needed by the thin fabrics and after removing the lightweight materials re-set the dial and finish drying the heavier fabrics.

Hang a blanket out to dry immediately after washing it. Before hanging the blanket, wrap an old sheet or clean white cloth around a tightly strung clothesline. Hang the blanket over one line or, preferably, over two parallel lines without using clothespins or folding the blanket. Reverseing the blanket several times while it is iced beverages will be more cooling if you freeze your ice cubes around fruits or flowers. To do this place an ice tray half full of water in the refrigerator until partially frozen. Then place the fruit or flower in the cube compartments, fill the remainder of the tray with water and freeze.

Frozen applesauce cut into very small pieces and whipped in a mixer until smooth and frosty makes a perfect children's dessert. Try coloring it with green food coloring and flavoring with mint extract. It may also be used as a topping for a fresh fruit cup.

When storing lettuce, cut out the core, wash the head in cold water and then drain on a plate for about 30 minutes. Failure to drain the lettuce properly will result in water accumulating in the vegetable drawer and the lettuce may turn brown.

Warm water is best for sprinkling clothes, says the General Electric Consumers Institute, because it spreads through the clothes more evenly and quickly. Sprinkled clothes should stand for at least a half hour before ironing, but ever more than 24 hours (much less in hot, humid weather).

Try a variation on the old ice-cream-and-waffle dessert favorite by adding a teaspoon of maple extract and 1/2 cup chopped nuts to your favorite waffle recipe. Serve waffles hot or cold with ice cream, topped with maple syrup.

PILLSBURY CHICKEN GUESSING CONTEST NEARING END

The chicken guessing contest which is attracting considerable attention in this area is rapidly drawing to a close, though entries are still being accepted. The contest, which is in progress at SCOTTSVILLE FLOUR MILLS is based on the growth rate of a number of chickens on display. Tylor Robertson reminded contestants today that they have only a short time in which to revise their guesses, if they wish to do so.

"I have never seen as much interest as is being shown in this contest," he said. "I think one reason is that everyone feels there is a better chance to win because contestants know they aren't competing with thousands of others. Only people in this area are eligible, and the prizes will go to local people. There is still time to enter, but I advise fast action, because the end of the contest is May 7th."

TIME SAVING SUGGESTIONS

Do you like to stand in line and wait? Most people wish to avoid this inconvenience. We suggest four methods by which you may save time in doing business with our institution. First, bank early in the day. Whenever possible, call at the bank before 11:30 A. M. in order to avoid the noon-hour rush and the busy "just before closing" periods. Second, bank in the middle of the week. The middle of the week is best for banking rapidly. Monday is a busy day and as the week-end approaches, the number of people served at each window increases. Third, avoid extremely busy days such as the fifteenth of the month, the last day of the month, the day after holiday or paydays. Fourthly, you may wish to Bank-by-Mail. In this case you go right to the head of the line when you use our Bank-by-Mail service. In this manner you can bank here by mail 24 hours a day. Try any of the above methods which you think may help you to save time.

We would like you to understand the banking methods made available here in order that we may serve you with greater speed and efficiency.

No Place Like Home?

Eventually Levy Taxes

Eventually the American people, now so loudly complaining of the tax burden, will achieve a better understanding of the tax situation and responsibility for it.

Officials who have the power to levy taxes, starting with Congress and down to the lowest taxing boards, are elected by a majority of the voters.

If the citizens ever determine they want lower taxes badly enough to do something to bring the desired result, they will be able to achieve it by the same means which is responsible for current levies—their votes.

Country Lawyer

Circumstances require that this syndicated weekly newspaper column have a personal tinge this week. It is personal in the sense that this writer is involved but the broader question affects every citizen.

It had to do with the tyranny of the constantly increasing deluge of forms poured down upon the people out of the dark dungeons of bureaucracy.

In the aggregate these forms constitute robbery. They rob the people of millions upon millions of hours of time each year.

The task of filing out these forms is, to say the least, unpleasant.

These forms strike at us from both Washington and Richmond. There is no escape from them. The only restraint upon the madness of these bureaus is that in Washington the Congress will take a hand in extreme cases.

Among those Richmond bureaus is the Compensation Board. This Board sets the salaries of county officers by the people. It is said that this is necessary because the state pays part of the salaries of these officers.

In my capacity as Commonwealth's Attorney my salary is paid in two checks each month. One half is paid by the county and one-half by the state acting through the Compensation Board.

Apparently that simple easy way was not to the liking of the bureau. It had to find and did find a complicated and burdensome method.

The Board says that these forms are necessary for its records but in that the Board is hardly fair with itself. It admits to an inability to keep records in a simple easy manner such as any bookkeeper can set up for them if desired.

As a citizen I am resentful of the job of form-filing. There have been so many of them and the job has become so onerous that I was about ready to explode in resentment at this form of tyranny. Then along came the Compensation Board with its ridiculous decree directing that I shall assume the burden of filling out its ridiculous forms under oath each month in order to be paid my salary as Commonwealth's Attorney.

When this hit me I did what millions of citizens wished they had the courage to do. I bucked. I told the Board I would not fill out these forms unless there was some reason. The only reason the Board has given is that it is "necessary" which is no more than its own conclusion.

This leaves a question. Should I succumb to the tyranny of that bunch of appointees in Richmond and take of my time to satisfy their make-work whim. Or should I hold fast and let that Board deprecate the will of the people of this country by firing me through withholding of my salary.

It would be nice to hear comment by the people on this matter.

ORCHARD GRASS OFFERS CASH INCOME TO MANY FLUVANNA FARMERS—

In reply to many questions relative to harvesting orchard grass, I wish to give the following information:

Time and Methods of Cutting—

The time to harvest orchard grass seed is usually limited to 3 or 4 days. Orchard grass is ready to cut when in the light dough stage (when majority of straw is tan to brown 3 to 4 inches below the head.)

The preferred method of harvesting orchard grass is with a binder. Cut and place bundles in small shocks, about 4 bundles in a shock.

The heads of the shocks are tied together so that any shattering of seed will be saved by falling into the bundle. The advantage of a small shock is that less seed is lost by shattering and when loading a wagon the whole shock can be lifted with a fork at one time.

Threshing—Under average conditions threshing can be done in 10 to 15 days after shocking. Use a tight bottom wagon or rack for hauling bundles to the thresher to or a combine used as a stationary thresher. The combine is not recommended for direct harvesting, as a good portion of the seed will have shattered from the heads by the time the material is dry enough to combine. Furthermore, save the seed that has shattered in loading. A canvas spread over the bottom of the wagon will help to save the shattered seed.

Orchard grass can be threshed either with a stationary thresher if harvested before shattering operate without leaving seeds in to germinate well in addition to being chaffy and too high in moisture for storage.

In using a stationary thresher use only one set of concaves and adjust them as low as possible to takes place the seeds are too green the straw. Raising the concaves will result in cutting the straw, making the seed more difficult to clean.

In threshing with a combine as a stationary thresher the space between the cylinder and concaves should be great enough to prevent cutting the straw. This space should not be great enough to allow seed to remain unthreshed in the straw.

I have had several requests for information pertaining to the control of woodchucks (ground hogs). Upon investigation I have found that one of the most practicable methods of controlling woodchucks on the average is to gas the animals in their dens. I have in my office a limited supply of the cartidges at a small cost which I plan to use for demonstrational purposes. If you are interested in more information, let me know and I will send you a copy of detailed instructions.

Farm Bureau Now Numbers Nearly 200

A fruitful meeting of Farm Bureau members and families was held at Fluvanna County High School on Friday, April 18. This gathering proved especially informative to the many new recruits of the Bureau, whose membership now approaches the 200 mark. Harry Shephard chairman of the recent membership drive, advises, "Keep on being a booster. The information you pass out really counts when a man signs up as a member."

Speakers of the evening were: H. C. Blalock, President of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, who outlined the importance of the Farm Bureau's work; and Alden Flory, Virginia Farm Bureau Insurance Manager, who told of the services the county Farm Bureau can offer individuals.

Much pep and neighborly good will were exhibited especially at the social hour, when members were urged to consume all the ice cream, soft drinks, and cookies they could eat. Fluvanna farmers displayed healthy capacities, especially among the small fry, yes, "chips" of course! The entertainment feature in the gym was a basketball game between the High School Boys and a team of "Hot-Shot" Farm Bureau men. A few of the stars were Ellis Snead, R. C. Omohundro, Jr., Capt. Edger-ton, Paul France, and other entertainingly graceful or professionals. Amid the honest sweat of a working organization, it is a treat to sandwich in such rollicking frolic. We wish more of you farmers and farmettes would try it in the name of the Farm Bureau of Fluvanna County.

"What to Plant in 1952" is the name of the bulletin, which lists recommendations on small grains, corn, soybeans, peanuts, and tobacco. Recommendations on forage crops are omitted from the publication, since results last season were similar to the results in former years, and are available in the 1951 varietal bulletin. The agronomists say no immediate changes will be made in the recommended forage crop varieties, since the experimental varieties and strains will require further testing.

The bulletin deals with experimental yields, cultivation practices, and suggested varieties for various areas of the state.

It also notes that, in addition to the work carried on at the main Agricultural Experiment Station at VPI and at the outlying substations, several county agents and individual farmers have made plots available on private farms.

Man's first weapon in warfare was the slingshot.
