Hard Work Has Paid Off For Cohasset Man; Still At It After 86 Years

able garden, his 14 hogs, and has built himself.

Mr. Minter is a native of Fluvanna County and grew up about gine. a mile from Shores. He went to school on the spot where Slays Chapel now stands.

This self-sufficient man went to work when he was 16 for the C. & O. railroad. After he married the former Miss Annah Anderson of Fluvanna and their first daughter was born, he left the railroad and took up farming with C. C. Snead near Carysbrook. Eight years later, he became manager of Philip Stoneman's farm near Columbia, where he contracted typhoid

After five more years of farming, Mr. Minter returned to the C. & O. railroad, where he spent 26 years on the Virginia Air Line

In 1924 an automobile collision badly crushed both his legs. He was hospitalized for six weeks and later had them treated at the Mayo Brothers Clinic. Despite this, he built the home in which he now lives in 1922, and after his injury gradually built several other buildings to house his tools, his corn, his mill, his pigs and other posses-

Misfortune came again four years ago when Mr. Minter was picking pears from a tree in his front yard. He fell out of the tree and broke his right arm and his back, "I thank God I am walking about," says Mr. Minter .

Mrs. Minter passed away in 1940. Since then Mr. Minter has lived alone. He has deep praise and gratitude for the people who helped him after his last injury, when he was alone and helpless.

"What makes a man feel better", says Mr. Minter, "than for a good true-friend to walk in or send a card or letter when he is sick at home or in the hospital?" He believes that working people should think more of their fellowmen, and remember the commandment, dent of the Jolly-Five Federa-"Love thy neighbor as thyself."

"I think more of my good of America for 1952-53. She is friends," he says, "than I do of money."

Mr. Minter has been a member of the Bethel Baptist Church since 1892 and is a deacon there.

One thing that spurred the sheep business this year in Virginia was the terific drought which cut hay creased efficiency in almost all office each week on Monday, Wedand feed supplies. Many farmers, the feet phases of farming and homemak-nesday and Friday mornings. This was born October 26 at the Univerhave taken advantage of the fact that a ton of hay will help winfer a lot of sheep, but won't go far with cattle. Green winter small grain pasture, when It is good enough to carry five ewes and their lambs per acre will cut the amount of harvested feed needed in half.

Another trend in sheep this year was a return to Southdowns. This breed, which weighs less but grades higher than some other breeds, seemed to have lost out when the 1951 returns were in. But this year, prices of Southdowns at the ram sales had slipped only $11.57, while Hampshires were down $42.75; Dorsets $52.57; Shropshires, $32.50 and Suffolks $54.57. Virginia lamb buyers often made 31/2c to 4c a pound difference between the Southdowns which graded blue, and other breeds grading red, and it was enough to put Southdowns on the "comeback trail."

Virginia sheepmen are continuing to save early native ewes and to bring Western ewes to build up their flocks. Some 2,500 Western ewes came into the state this year. The early selected natives are the best. They'll produce 1.2 lambs their yearling year. Wesiern rank second, with .9 lamb; and commercial natives lag with only .6 lamb. Commercial natives are the "quickest way out of the sneep business."

WINTER CARE OF EQUIPMENT

Here are some pointers for home gardeners on off-season care of spraying and dusting equipment and materials.

In most cases fungicides and insecticides can be stored through the winter and be just as effective next year. However, the dusts must be stored in a dry place.

Keep chemicals out of reach of children and livestock. To avoid rust and corrosion, be sure to clean dusters and sprayers thoroughly before they are put away for the winter. Don't leave any material in the equipment. Remember to hang equipment in a dry place. You can oil all the moving parts, but don't put oil inside the duster.

COMPOST HEAP VALUABLE

AID FOR HOME GARDENERS Vegetable gardeners can use this off-season period to good advantage by preparing compost heaps.

Composts are an excellent source of humus - rotted organic matter - for garden soils. Almost any plant refuse that is not diseased can be used in making composth eaps. Leaves, grass clippings, flower and vegetable plant refuse may be used.

It is not necessary to follow a definite formula in making a compost heap. As materials become available, they can be put in layers on the ground, keeping the top of the pile somewhat concave so it will catch water:

The compost should be thoroughly rotted before it is applied to the garden. Turning and mixing the compost will improve its quality.

When the compost is ready for use, it is applied by spreading it on the garden and working it into the soil ..

CITIZENS True to their theme of the year, more than 2,000,000 boys and girls in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico are "Serving as Loyal Citizens Through 4-H." While mastering practical skills in farming, homemaking, and related fields, 4-H'ers develop a sense of responsibility far beyond their years. And through their tangible 4-H projects, these young people acquire rare—and reassuring—qualities of leadership for their future role as dependable, purposeful citizens. Achievement Day, November 8

The next highest on the list are burns, explosions, and fires for taking the lives of family members.

Careless smoking habits is a maor cause of fire. Many burns occur in the kitchen because of such minor things (it seems at the time) as pot handles not being turned in, lids being lifted toward face to allow steam to escape, and carelessness in turning on and off the source of heat on the range.

Explosions often occur by using gasoline or kerosene to start fires. by thoughtlessness in using pressure cookers, and by rubbish, magazines, furniture, rags, etc., stored in closets and attics.

Ambled over to Bob's Restaurant Tuesday for lunch and noticed a new sign "Left Ham Sandwich, 40¢ ... Right Ham Sandwich, 30¢."

"Why the sign, Bob?" I asked. "Don't tell me you believe hogs scratch more with their right leg than with their left—so's the left ham is more tender?"

"No," he says. "I don't take any stock in it. But, some people have ordered those 'left' sandwiches. When I explain to them that there's nothing to that fable, that the sign is just a business-getter, and I've only one price, they enjoy a regular, old fashioned, plain ham sandwich all the more!'

From where I sit, stories like "right" hams being tougher than "left" ones are with us because some people get ideas into their head and hang onto them for dear life. It's like those who think an adult like myself hasn't the right to a glass of beer with my supper. I say let's keep our opinions free from being "sandwiched-in" by misinformation.

They usually attended the same schools, wore the same clothes, aftended the same church, and did not embark on a contest to see who could show off the most possessions. It was considered in poor taste to talk about what things cost.

A child who is exposed to good books, good music, good companionship, a pleasant social and family life, will be richer than one who has a dollar bill for candy and a new bicycle.

It would seem that it is a time for faith, regardless of the political outcome, that America, like the mountains, is here to stay.

The round red moon each night and the great red sun each morning and evening is evidently caused by the smoke from far-flung forest fires. The whole atmosphere has seemed slightly strange. It is to be hoped that the rains have helped to quell the conflagrations, and that the presence of smoke is a grim reminder to be extra careful with matches and cigarettes. One man's carelessness can mean widespread and terrible results.

A research expert and public opinion surveyor recently said that most of us are copycats and slaves to habit. "Lying Campaign" By Trumanites Cited By Wright

"Campaign lying has reached a new low this year, especially among the Trumanites," Dr. David McCord Wright, professor of economics and business administration at the University of Virginia, told an election eve Eisenhower raily at Scottsville on Monday night.

In a last minute effort to swing the heavy voting Scottsville district into the Republican column, FLUVANNA: Dr. Wright addressed an audience of more than 125 persons, under sell Collins, Sr., Superintendent. the sponsorship of the Virginia crats for Eisenhower.

Typical of the campaign lying, the professor said, is the statement that the Eisenhower supporters only believe in passing out the blessings of government to the few while the Democrats want to give them to everyone.

"The real difference," he said, "is that the Eisenhower group believes you first have to produce the blessings before you can redistribute them. The men benind Stevenson seem to think production just rains from Heaven."

Dr. Wright termed as faisehoods statements that no Republican administration has been responsible for social benefits. "The real afference," he said, "is that the Eisenhower backers don't think handouts should be carried to the point at any one time, of ending the incentives which produce tremendous rises in output. That would be killing the goose that lays the golden egg." The production of the United States, the speaker stated, is the envy of the world, "but many of the men behind Stevenson think the ideal system would be the secure stagnation that is now destroying England. "If you wanteto slow down production, increase inflation and namstring independent opportunity, vote for Stevenson," Dr. Wright concluded.

The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot -Iandor squander.
