- C.R. Dorrier and Company General Merchandise paper, dated 1909, months September through November, sale of items

Historical Information:

The National Bank of Scottsville operated under the leadership of a number of presidents including James, W. Mason, David Pitts, and later Walter S. Dorrier (Lay). David Pitts served as the president and Walter S. Dorrier, brother of C.R. Dorrier, served as the cashier before becoming president (Ref 1). Mr. David Pitts would later serve as a member of the Virginia General Assembly (Ref 2). The bank was located along the west side of Valley Street in Scottsville, a street that intersects with Main Street, and is situated with the Carlton House to its left and the Post Office and Griffin building to its right, as viewed from the street (Ref 3). The Carlton House housed numerous businesses including the Carlton House Hotel, Sclater's Hardware Store, and the Dickinson Drugstore (Ref 4). Other individuals employed by the bank were Mrs. Susie Powers Blair who worked as the bookkeeper/clerk and her younger sister Lucy Powers who worked as a general employee (Ref 5).

Ownership of building:

John T. Noel sold the property for the Scottsville National Bank in 1906, which included a 10 foot wide portion of lot 146 and an adjacent 14 foot wide portion of lot 147. The new bank building was then constructed in 1907 after Mr. Noel's sale. The remaining land of lot 146 was sold to J.L. Pitts to construct the Pitts Building (Ref: Franklin, p. 11).

Architectural composition of the National Bank of Scottsville:

The bank building is a narrow two story building adjacent to the Carlton House Hotel. The lower facade of the building consists of two arched bays; the left bay is open for entry while the right contains a window (Ref: Franklin, p. 22, fig. 4) The upper division of the facade is composed of a lighter brick and remains largely intact today, while the lower section of the facade has been reconstructed by the Albemarle Bank and Trust Company (Ref: Franklin, p. 11).
