Members of the CIO local union who attended were Eugene Hamshar, chairman; Herman Lamb, vice-chairman; Mrs. Frances Turner, Mrs. Alice Bradley, and Joe Bolling.

Shelbyville Is Site For Plant Expansion

Ground will be broken this summer for a major expansion of Shelbyville Mills, United States Rubber Company's textile mill in Shelbyville, Tenn., which will give employment to approximately 200 additional people next year, it was announced today by W. E. Clark, vice president and general manager of the company's Textile division.

The expansion will be a one-story addition to the main mill building covering more than 6700 square feet of floor space, Mr. Clark said. It will be of brick construction and with large window areas for good lighting and ventilation. Production in the new structure probably will start early in 1954.

This will be the second major expansion of the plant in the past two years. The proposed unit will be attached to the west side of the recent addition.

Mr. Clark said that the new unit is necessary for the further production of goods now being made at Shelbyville Mills. The plant produces tire chafer fabric, tufting yarns and rayon tire cord. About 750 men and women are currently employed at the plant.

Annual Art Exhibit At Fluvanna High School Receives Highly Favorable Comment

The annual art exhibit of the Fluvanna County schools held at Carysbrook last week received highly favorable comment by delegations of artists and educators from this section of Virginia.

B. A. Makielski, of the Jefferson School of Fine and Applied Art of Charlottesville, formerly professor of art at the University of Virginia, and well known in "Who's Who in American Art," declared the whole exhibit to be most exciting, and pointed out what he considered the most outstanding single entries and groups throughout the show—grades one through twelve.

"Everyone of any importance in art and educational work throughout the State should have been here at the exhibit," he said.

From the delegation from Richmond educators which included Miss Helen Cynthia Rose, director of art for Richmond schools, came expressions of delight and interest, especially for the three-dimensional works of art including the ceramics of the high school, and the method of using native clay for sculpture, and polishing it with wax. One remarked that the exhibit showed much growth during the past two years. Mrs. R. F. Vander Aarde, delegate from the River Road Art Guild of Richmond, said "This is as exciting as the Metropolitan Art Museum of New York."

And as Charles Smith, of the Department of Fine Arts, University of Virginia at Charlottesville, and also known in "Who's Who in American Art" said, "Art is useful in the lives of all of us, and this can be demonstrated through good teaching of art in the public schools."

Among those responsible for the success of this exhibition were J. P. Snead, superintendent of schools for Fluvanna county; Miss L. Wallace Heard, Director of Instruction who has spurred the art program for six years; Mrs. Jeane Fowler Roberts, art consultant for the county for the past two years; H. W. Charlton, Principal of Fluvanna County High School; Mrs. E. J.

More Air Spotters Needed For Post

John P. Dorrier, supervisor and Milton Cohen, assistant-supervisor of the Scottsville Air Watch Post stressed the need this week for additional air spotters in order to man the post on a 24 hour watch. The Scottsville Post has been in operation since May 18 and Mr. Dorrier stated that he was pleased with the co-operation of the people who have manned the post to date, but that additional volunteers are needed.

Dorrier stated that the Scottsville Lions Club had undertaken the project as a civic project and he urged all Lions to assume responsibility for seeing that the post is manned. Thirty-one members of the Lions Club have been given permanent days on which they are responsible for a round-the-clock watch at the Air Post. Dorrier urged that these Lions Club members check in advance with their watcher to see that they will fill the watch. If replacements are needed, the member of the Lions Club in charge of the post on that particular day must secure a substitute, Mr. Dorrier stated.

The Scottsville Post, which is located a mile from Scottsville town limits on Route 20, was recently constructed. It is one of the four posts located in Albemarle County.

Ramblings

Commencement activities top the list of events in a lot of families for the next two weeks. Graduates of countless high schools and colleges will end a period in their lives upon which they will often look back with happy memories. It is curious in a way that the end of school is called commencement. Those who have just taken exams and passed them have a feeling more of ending a long, sometimes hard, course than of beginning a new road to the future. But while this week the graduates will be king and queen for a day, they will become beginners again in whatever part in life they chose to play after graduation. Some will go on to further study, where they will go from the top class to beginning freshmen, or they may start out as green young employees in a business where they can again work toward the top. Whether the transition is to a job, another school, or marriage, they will take with them the knowledge they have gained during the past four years, and the memory of some of the advice they receive during graduation exercises. Here, the clergy is much in demand, and with more people turning toward church and religion for strength and faith in a world which is not a bed of roses, it is proper that ministers should play a part in such commencement exercises. County on reaching her 100th Success may come from a good birthday Sunday. She is known to education, hard work and good many of our readers. If you can't go on a long, expensive vacation this year, the advantage of living in Virginia is the number of short side-trips that can be made in a day or a weekend. This is not a paid tourist ad, but I think it is interesting to know about the little narrow-gauge one-mile railroad that is operating purely for fun up near Harrisonburg. The Shenandoah Central Railroad, "The Tweetsie Route",

And while felicitations are going around, we would also like to join many others in congratulating Mrs. George Parrish of Fluvanna (Continued on page seven)

Feeder Calf Sales Planned in Virginia

Some 25,000 feeder calves are expected to be auctioned at the fall series of 26 sales in Virginia.

K. C. Williamson, associate animal husbandman at VPI, says 17 of the sales will require heifer calves to come from tuberculosis and brucellosis-free herds. The other nine will require the calves themselves to be tested within 30 days preceding the sale. The animals will be vaccinated for blackleg and shipping fever, and will be dehorned. Veterinarians will be on hand at the sales to offer buyers any services wanted.

The sale at Tazewell, October 15, is new in the series. The Buena Vista market has grown to the extent that there will be two sales there instead of one as formerly; and South Boston and Danville, which have been holding sales on alternate years, will each hold a sale this year.

At the two 1953 spring feeder calf sales at Lynchburg and Winchester average prices were $22.63 and $31.30 respectively.

The fall schedule: September 18, Ewing; 23, Charlottesville; 24, Culpeper; 25, Orange; 28, Roanoke;

29 Christiansburg (Hereford); 30, Buena Vista; October 1, Lynchburg; 2, Bedford and Staunton; 6, Harrisonburg; 7, Richmond; 8, South Boston and Southwest Virginia Angus at Wytheville; 9, Winchester; 12, Monterey; 13, Front Royal (Rappahannock) and Abingdon; 14, Fredericksburg and Tazewell; 15, Danville and Galax; 16, Petersburg and Wytheville (Hereford); 20, Front Royal (Page); 21, Buena Vista; 23, Ewing.

Artificially Sired Dairy Cattle

Show High Production

Artificially sired dairy cattle in Virginia are out-producing those in most other states.

Dr. Keith Huston, associate dairy husbandman at VPI, says a report on the 1,126 daughters of 67 bulls in the four studs supplying them in Virginia, showed that they average 10,655 pounds of milk and 474 pounds of fat. On a butterfat basis, this production is exceeded in only 8 states, all of which have less than 45 bulls in service.

By breeds: 587 artificially sired Holsteins averaged 12,740 pounds of milk in Virginia as compared to 12,591 pounds U. S. average; 351 Guernseys averaged 9,108 pounds as compared to 8,202 U. S. average.

Plant Vegetables in June For Continuous Supply

Several vegetables should be planted in June to assure a continuous supply throughout the season.

That's the timely tip from VPI horticulturists. Sweet corn is a good crop to plant after lettuce, radish, or peas have been harvested. If you plant blocks of three or more rows of corn at each planting, the ears will fill out better than if only one row is planted.

Don't bother to remove the suckers from the plant because tests have shown no advantage in yield or quality when they are removed. Do not save seed from hybrid sweet corn. Such seed usually does not come true to the plant from which it was harvested.

Other vegetables that may be planted in June are carrots, radish, beans, and tomatoes. Circular 475 has suggestions on recommended varieties. If you want a copy drop me a card or stop by the office.

Use Tobacco Fertilizer For Tobacco, Is Advice

Burley growers who use fertilizer not especially formulated for tobacco are running the risk of injury to the quality of the crop.

G. R. Mathews, associate agronomist at VPI, says fertilizers not designed for use on tobacco usually contain potash which comes from muriate.

Muriate of potash contains a large amount of chlorine, and too much chlorine is very injurious to tobacco quality.

Read The Label

Read the label when you're using pesticides.

Agricultural Extension Service specialists at VPI say many new chemicals are being developed for pest control, and it pays to read the label so you will know what you are using and how to handle it properly.

Most recommendations for the control of fruit, garden, and flower pests are made in terms of the actual chemical that does the killing, or a coined common name which has been approved for use. This should help eliminate some confusion to the purchaser when he encounters one of the hundreds of trade-named pesticides now on the market—if he reads the label.

Another reason for reading the label is to learn the precautions for handling chemicals. Many chemicals used today to kill insects and diseases are much more toxic to human beings than the older poisons. Some pesticides are being advertised as 'safe' when actually they contain chemicals that may be harmful to human beings if improperly used. All labels are registered with state and federal agencies and must contain the ingredients listed on the container.

The Meanderer

Although officially we are still in the season of Spring, it certainly looks and feels like summer. The growth is very lush and green, the temperature is hot. One has to get things done before the heat sets in. And yet by the time these words appear we may have the heat, instead of the electric fan on.

Magnolias are blooming, and there are still some kinds of roses that are in their prime. We always think of June as being the month of roses, and yet really it is May when most of them are at their best. As for magnolias, we have a problem with our one and only magnolia tree. We planted it several years ago in a spot which we expected to clear of everything else, so the magnolia could take over the whole space. But we left an oak and several dogwoods sort of on the edge of the place, to be cut down when the magnolia got larger. Now it has gotten larger and we don't want to cut the dogwoods and the oak, for they too now are of some size and attractive shape. If we don't cut them the magnolia will be crowded out or misshapen. Is the magnolia worth the price of the others? It's a hard decision to make.

We have been looking for the Blue Grosbeak, and finally found one on a telegraph wire the other day. For several years we have seen them near us, where they nest in brushy edges of the fields. This is not a common bird. The Grosbeak is a deep dull blue, with a large bill and two rusty wing-bars. It is larger than a sparrow, and somewhat suggests the Indigo Bunting, which is an all-blue bird, but the Bunting is much smaller and has a less stout bill. We were glad to find the Grosbeak back again in our vicinity this year, and hope it is nesting.

We saw something new and different in the way of an ad for "Audubons-by-the-yard" in the last issue of the Audubon Magazine. One of the fabric concerns in New York has come up with material for draperies and slip covers in washable cotton, using two of Audubon's plates, the Ruffed Grouse, and the Warbler, for the designs. According to the ad, all of Audubon's magnificent detail has been reproduced, and the color is said to be absolutely authentic. We'd like to see this material, which is reported to be not prohibitive as to price.

Fluvanna Art Exhibit

Fluvanna County, in its sixth annual art exhibition of work done in the county schools, has set a pace in school art instruction which other counties will emulate, it has been said by the art consultant of Fluvanna county. The praise which the exhibit drew from art critics is a just reward for those who have put forth much time and sincere effort to bring the enjoyment and appreciation of art into the daily lives of the county's young people.

Excerpts from comments by art leaders who saw the exhibit show clearly that art is becoming more and more important not only in educational circles, but as a criterion for good decorative taste in homes and business.

Schools in other counties could not do better than follow in the trail set forth by the leaders of this art project. Experience in artistic creation after instruction in what makes a thing artistic is of the highest value in a child's education, and something he will make use of all his life. May we commend all who have made this annual event such a success.

After Two Decades

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has stated that the federal budget cannot be balanced in the next fiscal year, despite substantial cuts in appropriations. There will be a deficit, and it probably will be necessary to again increase the legal debt limit.

It took two decades to get the government and the taxpayers into this mess. We can't get out of it overnight. In the meantime, the Administration must be encouraged in its efforts to reduce costs as rapidly as possible—and the people must have the character and the resolution to accept and applaud the fact that the Santa Claus era seems to be ending. That won't be easy. But it will be infinitely easier than the national bankruptcy that would inevitably result from continued unbridled spending.

FACING HARD BUDGET FACTS MAY HELP SOLVE PROBLEM

In the first of these columns, which I wrote for publication during the week of January 5, 1953, I said: "The most immediately pressing problem which must be solved largely by the Congress is that of approaching a balanced budget. I say 'approaching' because even the most optimistic economy advocates realize that the budget cannot be balanced immediately without postponing even the limited tax relief which the people of the nation have been led to expect."

Again in my column for the week of January 18th I pointed out that all but about $10 billion in the 1954 budget prepared by President Truman was for national security and related purposes and that our ability to cut was limited by the fixed requirements for such essentials as postal service, making and enforcing laws, collecting and administering federal property and records. "It is apparent, therefore," I wrote, "that whether or not spending can be kept anywhere near the estimated federal income figure for next year x x x will depend largely on what President

Eisenhower feels we need to spend Last week President sent to the Congress a message on the budget in which he said: "To reduce expenditures enough to balance the 1954 budget would require more drastic curtailment of our national security programs than we can safely afford in today's troubled world."

The President gave figures which indicated that if all the cuts below the Truman proposals which he felt justified in recommending were made the government still would spend $6.6 billion more than it took in during the year starting next July unless existing tax laws are changed.

He recommended letting the excess profits tax run to the end of 1953 instead of the middle of this year, and indefinite continuation of the 5-percent super-tax on corporate income, and various wartime excise taxes which were supposed to end next April. He also asked that the scheduled reduction of around 10 percent of personal income taxes become effective next January, as provided by the present law, instead of being moved up to July, as some members of Congress have proposed.

If these recommendations are adopted, the President said there still would be a bookkeeping excess of $5.6 billion in federal spending as compared with collections during the 1954 fiscal year although the cash shortage would be only $2.8 billion because of collections which would be credited to social security or other special funds.

All of this may be disappointing to some who leaned too heavily on campaign promises of quick action to balance the budget and reduce taxes but the President's realistic acceptance of hard facts which were well known to those of us who have had to deal with them on the appropriation committees will make it easier to proceed with the necessary task of correcting what he correctly called "a critically unsound state of financial affairs."

will sell you a ticket for a ride through the farm of Dr. P. S. Hill, R. R. President, to a picnic grove where you may enjoy lunch on tables, and then ride back, with the train backing up, since there is not room at the station end for it to turn around. This narrow-gauge railroad was started by three men who wanted to preserve some narrow gauge equipment, as it was fast disappearing when the new lines of present-day railroads became standard (4 ft., 8 1/2 in. between rails). The name of this little four-car train is "twetzie", supposedly named because of its shrill zird-like whistle, and it is one of three narrow-gauge operating museums in the country. Several railroad companies were instrumental in contributing to the building and equipment of this little railroad, and it is a cheering thought that the big companies still had a sentimental interest in helping to preserve something out of yesteryear. The tickets are punched by a conductor who returns them for souvenirs, and the little steam locomotive actually is a "choo-choo" train, quite a curiosity now.

It was as fine a service as I have ever attended.
